Whimsical Christopher Robin Stories Retold in Latin Version

BY MILES A. SMITH
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK —(AP)— In case you came in late, the latest quotation from the talking teddy bear is, "Veni, vidi, vici."

The bear, of course, would be Eduardus Ursus, in the book A. A. Milne wrote in English as "Winnie-the-Pooh," now translated into Latin by Alexander Lenard under the title "Winnie Ille Pu."

The Latin version was published last Dec. 12 by Dutton, which brought out Milne's book in 1926. A number of Ernest Shepard's original illustrations are used in the Romanized text.

Winnie in Latin has become an unexpected hit in the publishing world. The first printing was cleaned off booksellers' shelves before Christmas and then the book began to roll. At last reports it was in its eighth printing.

For anyone who missed the original, it should be explained that this is a story told by the author to his small son, Christopher Robin. Bedtime stuff. It relates the minor adventures of Christopher's animal toys, who talk and sometimes act like human beings.

Animal Characters
Winnie, being a bear of small brain, likes honey but gets his head stuck in the honey jar. There are Piglet (in the Latin version Porcellus), Rabbit, Kanga and Baby Roo, Eeyore the donkey, and so on.

Some parents, bored to distraction by most bedtime stories, found enough whimsy mixed into the batch that they didn't mind the chore of reading aloud.

But why would a Latin version catch on? In the beginning, a big push came from reviewers, feature writers, editorial writers, columnists and plain reporters. They pounced upon this novelty, sprinkled their copy with Latin sentences and had fun.

After that, here are some of

All First Chair Men of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, this foursome becomes the Kohon String Quartet after the symphony season closes. The quartet will play masterpieces works on the Artists Series of Wisconsin State College, Oshkosh, tonight at the Grand Theater in Oshkosh. The 8:15 p.m. concert closes the OSC Artists Series for the season. From left to right are violinist Harold Kohon, violinist Andre Svilkos, cellist Walter Toroni and violist Guillermo Perich.

NEURITIS FORM OF RHEUMATISM DUE TO NERVOUS PRESSURE

Pains and aches shooting through the arms and legs and over the shoulder commonly felt this time of year is a form of neuritis and is often called rheumatic neuritis.

The science of Chiropractic contends that rheumatic neuritis caused by nerve pressure. A recent book entitled "Fractures and other bone and joint injuries," written by R. Watson - Jones, again verifies the Chiropractic principle. The following are a few sentences from the book "Joint subluxation (displacement) is more serious than is generally recognized. The displacement may follow a severe injury such as a fall on the head or a dive in shallow water. In other instances the accident appears unimportant. The resulting nerve root irritations and compression then led to persistent disabling neuritis in one or both upper limbs."

A Chiropractor locates and removes the nerve irritation. When the cause of neuritis is removed the nerve subsequently heals and the pain subsides.

TORINO, Ill. (AP)—The once prospering village of Torino, labeled a ghost town by the U. S. Census Bureau, has seven indignant and very alive inhabitants. "We still live in Torino," Mrs. John Marma declared, "and we love it."

Mrs. Marma said the seven members of her family apparently were not at home when the census taker visited their village. But its coal mines gave out over the years, and in 1950 the census counted only nine.

Then on Feb. 25, Torino was listed as one of five newly designated ghost towns in the country.

Mrs. Marma said the family probably will move away four years from now, when the Peabody Coal Co. is scheduled to take their land.

"That," she said sadly, "will definitely be the end of Torino."

Rothwell Gets Big Boost in Primary

Valley Man's Lead More Than Expected for Superintendency

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — A widely known Fox Valley schoolman who has the powerful backing of professional educators Tuesday got a substantial start in his campaign for election to the state superintendency of public instruction.

The lead of Angus Rothwell, Manitowish, in the primary election was generally expected, but his margin was better than his campaign circle had anticipated. Biggest surprise in the primary was the poor showing of Ralph Gibson, Madison, who had on two previous occasions the campaign for liberal votes Gibson's hope for Democratic party backing in the precincts was not forthcoming.

Strong Second

William Fenelon, Whitefish Bay, who ran a strong second to Rothwell in the light vote, is reputed to have the kind of campaign machinery in readiness to give Rothwell a sharp fight for the April runoff voting.

Fenelon is understood to be preparing a campaign that will appeal, however obliquely, to conservative rural interests on controversial aspects of school organization laws and to Republican loans on federal aid to education and related issues.

The nomination of Stewart Honeck and Judge Myron Gordon, both of Milwaukee, for the state Supreme court was universally expected Honeck's strong vote, in spite of a comparatively quiet pre primary campaign effort, makes him the favorite for election next month.

First for Gordon

The former attorney general obviously capitalized the fact that he had previously held office as attorney general in a Republican state administration, and that he had made state-wide campaigns.

Ralph Gibson, Madison, who had on two previous occasions the current campaign is the first one in which the young Milwaukee trial court judge, formerly active in the Democratic party, has shown himself to the Wisconsin electorate at large.

Gordon organized a classically thorough campaign starting more than a year ago but he and his associates were worried about Honeck's stature and prestige as a former chief legal officer for the state government.

Gordon recently told friends in Madison he might have organized the best campaign that ever lost for justice of the state supreme court.

Rothwell, Fenelon to Run for School Post

nearby doubled Fenelon's total in the five man superintendent primary. Ralph Gibson of Madison, Frederick Frick of Milwaukee and in 1959 and is the author of a Arlyn Wollenberg of Lake Mills novel which dealt with a teacher trailed far behind the leaders.

Rothwell, a native of Superior and a graduate of Superior State College is a former president of the Wisconsin Education Association and former chairman of its council on education. He has a master's degree from Columbia University and has done additional graduate work at both the University of Wisconsin and the University of Minnesota. He is married and the father of three children.

Given Strong Support

During the primary campaign he won endorsement from an assortment of professional organizations, including the Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators. He is an advocate of improving the quality of education by raising teacher standards.

Fenelon who like Rothwell married a teacher, is a native of Fond du Lac and similarly took his first degree from a State College—Oshkosh. He received both a master's and a doctor's degree from Northwestern University. He has urged slowing of school reorganization and further study of school consolidation.

Political Influence

Although both primaries were non partisan by statute there were strong political overtones in the Supreme Court race and they are certain to be influential in the election campaign.

Alexopoulos maintained his Democratic affiliations, apparently without much effect since party feelings seemed to concentrate behind the two front runners.

Honeck, for 11 years deputy attorney general under a Republican administration then himself elected to one term as attorney general on the GOP ticket, lost office in the 1958 Democratic sweep.

Deny Politics Issue

He and Gordon both disclaimed any current political affiliation during the primary campaign, and both emphasized their non partisan attitudes toward the high court. But Honeck claimed much of his strength from Republican strongholds as Democratic areas went for Gordon.

Since 1958 Honeck has resumed his private law practice in Milwaukee. Married, father of four children and a resident of the suburb of Thiensville, Honeck is a 33rd Degree Mason. He is 54.

Gordon, first elected to the bench as a civil judge in 1949 has been a Circuit Judge since 1954. A leader in religious and racial tolerance groups, he was 1960 chairman of Brotherhood of the Week and is a past state commander of the Disabled American Veterans. ### Aims at Tippy Drivers

Bill Would Force Blood Tests in Licensing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The "implied consent" plan for licensing motor vehicles and controlling drunken driving will have a test in the Legislature.

A bill that would have the effect of making every licensed driver vulnerable to a blood test for intoxication, as a condition of his right to drive on the public highways, has been offered by Sen. Howard Cameron of Rice Lake. He is a lawyer.

Reaction Favorable

Under present law, a driver cannot be forced to submit to an intoxication test, even if the arresting officer has reason to believe that he is drunk.

Some enforcement officials are friendly to the idea of "implied consent" to such tests in the licensing law, including those in state motor vehicle department.

At the same time, parochial schools offer their own separate religion, which does little to provide broader information.

Atomic Power Project Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced it has decided to drop an atomic power project that would have meant building a reactor for either the Dairyland Power Cooperative of La Crosse, Wis., or the City of Jamestown, N.Y.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the principal reason for calling off the plan is that new conditions would make the project too costly from the government standpoint.

The AEC said the Jamestown and LaCrosse groups originally proposed a power project—involving a small pressurized water reactor in the 15,000 to 20,000 kilowatt range—in response to a commission invitation issued in 1959.

The invitation required that the proposers provide the site and plant and purchase steam produced in a plant to have been built by the AEC.

Kastenmeier Opposed to House Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., is opposed to increasing the House membership.

Kastenmeier urged in a letter to speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., that the membership of the House be kept at 435 to "prevent it from degenerating into an overpopulated European-like parliament."

Wisconsin, which maintained a population growth rate since the 1950 census about equal to the national average, will not gain or lose any seats from its present 10 when the membership is reapportioned in 1962.

The House membership was set at 435 in 1911. The act provides for the reapportionment of these 435 seats every 10 years, following the national census.

In 1958 the house membership was temporarily increased to 437 seats to take care of the new states of Alaska and Hawaii. It is due to return to 435 for the congressional elections of 1962.

However, before the 1962 elections, the 435 House seats are to be reapportioned to the states on the basis of the 1960 census. Some states like California will add several house seats and some states will lose one or more.

A number of bills have been introduced to increase the membership of the House. Some would enlarge it to 450, others would raise it to 469. Some of these would freeze the current state delegations and prevent any state from losing seats it now holds.

Kastenmeier said these bills are short-sighted and come under the heading of political self-preservation.

800 Moroccan U.N. Soldiers Will Fly Home

Banana last week are being called home.

The Congolese government today presented a five-point ultimatum to Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the U.N. Congo operation, and said it must be fulfilled before U.N. forces can return to Matadi, the chief supply port from which the U.N. Sudanese garrison was expelled Sunday.

The United Nations was considered certain to reject the Congolese demands, which were:

1 Dayal must be recalled and replaced by an "impartial" U.N. official. The Leopoldville government charges Dayal is opposed to it.

2 The Congolese must control the flights of all U.N. aircraft in the Congo and all river traffic.

3 The United Nations must hand over all strategic bases to the Congolese.

4 The United Nations must stage no more armed parades in Leopoldville.

5 Dayal must officially retract his "lying statements" that the Congolese fired first at Matadi and Banana.

An earlier Congolese demand for control of the strategic bases and air traffic in exchange for return of U.N. soldiers to Matadi had been termed obviously unacceptable by U.N. sources.

Belligerence Grows
The Congolese demands were put to Dayal and Irish Gen. Sean McKewen the U.N. military chief, by acting Premier Albert Delvaux and Jacques Massa, a member of his Cabinet.

As the negotiations continued the Congolese talked with increasing belligerence as a result of their victory over the Sudanese garrison that withdrew from Matadi. Delvaux told newsmen "for the moment we have decided that U.N. soldiers will not go back to Matadi which is 150 miles southwest of Leopoldville."

Westbrook Pegler's Father Dies in Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Arthur James Pegler, retired newsman and father of newspaper columnist Westbrook Pegler, died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 69.

Pegler came to the United States from his native London in 1882 at the age of 18. He worked as a cowboy in Nebraska before obtaining his first newspaper job on the St. Paul Minn., Globe. Later he was a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune, the New York Daily News and the New York Daily Mirror. He was the Mirror's chief editorial writer when he retired in 1929.

and I know it I would heartily favor a sales tax."

Both are businessmen and long time partisans of the Republican Party.

The only other comment came from Mrs. Erna McIntyre of Appleton, a member of the state college governing board, who protested the Lorge query.

"I'm a regent and interested in education," she said "I'm not a tax expert."

Hard to Get Faculty

Lorge got the opening for his question when Elvehjem talked about the difficulty of recruiting professors under his salary schedule and mentioned in passing that some teachers in other parts of the country dislike the Wisconsin personal income tax.

The budget hearing on the colleges and universities involving a money request of record size was the most intensive and lengthy that the capitol has ever seen.

Legislators questioned the educators closely and critically, evidently intent upon putting the recommendations of Gov. Nelson. The educators were earnest and solid.

See Deterioration

University men described their members of the commission faculty recruiting problems as desperate. If they are not permitted recommended passage of a bill to raise pay by 22 per cent during the next two years they said the university will suffer a deterioration that may require decades to make good.

equal vigor and offered suggestions on substantial cutting of the operational costs of the schools without damaging their programs. They asked for better space and faculty utilization and tighter admissions policies, among other changes. The schools are asking for biennial spending authority of about $130 million. Gov. Nelson cut about $11 million from the figure after a hearing in which he publicly warned them that the tax paying public is not yet wholly sympathetic to their claims upon the state treasury.

Group to Study Problems of Aged Proposed in State

MADISON (AP)—A state commission to study the problems of the aging was recommended Tuesday by the Assembly Public Welfare Committee.

The bill creating the commission with a $25,000 annual budget drew a large crowd of supporters of all ages to a public hearing.

With 400,000 Wisconsin citizens 65 years or over, it's time to coordinate the activities of private groups in this area, said Richard Bardwell, chairman of the Madison Committee On Aging.

The commission drew support from Gov. Gaylord Nelson. There is constant demand from local governments in Wisconsin for information in this area, he said in a statement.

Weather conditions in the other areas he explained were caused by cold air overriding the frontal system and causing a disturbance.

Congress Can't Figure Out Joke; Louisiana Pranksters Explain

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Congress has been asked not to take the Arkansas Legislature too seriously.

State Sen. Douglas Bradley of Jonesboro and some associates Tuesday introduced a tongue-in-cheek resolution which noted that the Legislature had memorialized Congress "To do this and to do that to raise taxes and to lower taxes to balance the budget and to increase Social Security benefits to abolish the income tax and capital punishment."

These resolutions "have induced in Congress a state of great confusion," the new resolution declared.

It concludes that Congress "is herewith urgently and respectfully memorialized to pay little or no attention to the resolutions heretofore adopted by this General Assembly."

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon will also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge. Relief doctors say lies in a new laxative principle. Old style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days, or worse. Old style salts and drugs clamp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONOID gives you a special 1 way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

Laos Civil War Running Against American Efforts

Heavy Flow of Soviet Weapons, Technicians Noted From Viet Nam

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The tide of civil war in Laos is beginning to run dangerously against American efforts to unify and neutralize that Southeast Asian country.

Worried Kennedy administration officials are now trying to figure out new moves this country or its allies can make to achieve a military stalemate and provide a fresh basis for diplomatic negotiations.

Officials hope to avoid a military showdown with the Soviet Union in Laos, but increasingly it is being said privately by authorities here that the United States will never allow the Communist conquest of Laos, since it would endanger all of Southeast Asia.

Unless the situation can be improved from the Western point of view in the next two or three weeks, the United States will have to take a much stronger position than it has so far in trying to bring the civil war under control, responsible authorities say.

One possible action under consideration is to give the Soviet government a new warning of the seriousness of American intentions not to settle for anything less than a neutralized Laos.

U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, who returned to Moscow from Washington early this week, is expected to explore the Laotian crisis with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev as soon as possible.

Tons of Weapons
The worsening of the situation in Laos, as evaluated in official quarters here, is due to a heavy inflow of Soviet weapons and Communist military technicians. It has gone badly in another respect. A regime has been established at Xiang Khouang in the northern and eastern parts of the country has been delivering tons of weapons and ammunition including artillery for almost three months.

Truck convoys from North Viet Nam have also been delivering Soviet weapons. The total amount of supplies the rebels have received since December is estimated at 4,000 tons or more.

This buildup for an estimated force of 2,400 Communist and pro-Communist troops, officials here said, has given the Reds a slight edge in military resources over the royal Lao army operating under the government of Premier Boua Oum.

The Reds have taken possession of about a third of the country. It is in the sense of increased military power and expanded territorial control that the tense situation is beginning to go against American aims.

Other political moves either originated or supported by Washington have failed. The Soviet Union turned down a proposal to re-establish an international central commission over Laos unless it was preceded by an international conference.

Communist governments have also rebuffed a proposal from King Savang Vatthana for creation of a three-action neutral commission to investigate conditions in Laos and make proposals for a settlement.

A grave problem is the danger of a U.S.-Soviet arms race in Laos. If the Soviet arms buildup continues to the point where the military balance is seriously threatened some officials here believe the United States will have to go in for heavy military aid to the Boua Oum government. If that process continues on each side the fear is that it might lead to broadening the war very considerably.

The United States so far has resisted Communist efforts to call an international conference on the problem. Officials now appear to be backing away from that position, but they are still reluctant to consider going into a conference when conditions in Laos would put the Western powers in a bad bargaining stance from the outset.

Political Moves
Efforts were recently made to persuade Phouma to join the Boua Oum government. He is reported to have told the Western powers that he would not take part in any government unless it also included representation for Communist-oriented Pathet-Lao.

Menasha Man Fined $130 in Municipal Court
Alvin J. DeKock, 25, 737 Ida St., Menasha, was fined $130 in municipal court Tuesday for disorderly conduct, failing to stop for a stop sign and operating his car without lights.

DeKock was arrested by Appleton police after an investigation of an incident early Saturday morning. A patrolman spotted a car pull up on Franklin Street, just east of Drew Street and a man got out. The patrolman followed the man to question him but the suspect ran away. The car was registered to DeKock.

Another patrolman spotted the man get back into the car and drive away without lights. The patrolman said the driver went through a stop sign at Drew and Franklin Street.

DeKock, when questioned by police, admitted running away from the patrolman. He said he had been drinking and was afraid of being arrested. He was fined $100 on the disorderly charge and $15 each on the traffic violations.

Portugese Stowaways Pretty Well Loaded When They Leave Ship
NEW YORK (AP) — It was quite a voyage.

No water to drink—only wine. No water to bathe or shave with—only wine.

And nothing to eat but sardines. And that makes you thirsty, and calls for more wine.

After 14 days of living on a Danish freighter's cargo, six Portuguese stowaways from Lisbon were pretty well loaded when the ship docked in Brooklyn.

Three of them popped out of the hold, scurried down the gang-plank and escaped. The other three were trapped in the hold by a crewman. Each gulped several glasses of water before they were turned over to immigration officials. They'll be sent back to Lisbon on the same ship. An alarm was broadcast for the others.

Lawrence Says Mysterious Silence Hovers Over Capitol

Nothing Being Done
About Loss of Lives
On Shot-Down RB-47

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A mysterious silence hovers over Capitol Hill. American lives have been lost through the wanton act of the Soviet government, but nothing is being done about it. The RB-47 was flying over the high seas at least 50 miles from land when it was shot down by the Communists last July 1. Yet the Moscow government gets away with a flagrant violation of International Law.

Lawrence

It was to vindicate this very principle—freedom of the seas—that the United States entered World War I after similar attacks on American ships by German submarines.

Public Inquiry

When the U-2 was forced down last May over Russian territory the senate foreign relations committee rushed into a public inquiry. This made headlines for several days and the Russian press exploited the hearing and got considerable comfort out of it. The committee's objective of course was merely to discredit the Republican administration. Now the senate foreign relations committee—which is dominated by a majority of Democrats—would have to be in the position of criticizing a Democratic administration. So no such investigation of what happened is being ordered. Nor is there to be any formal report apparently on the failure of the state department to pursue its protests.

There was justification perhaps for silence during the period that the two surviving American airmen were in jail. Negotiations for their release were successfully undertaken by the Kennedy administration after such efforts were rebuffed during the previous months. When the fliers were returned to the United States a curious set of developments occurred. First the fliers were met at the airport by the president himself and told to keep mum for the time being about what had happened. They were forbidden to talk to the press. Then after the lapse of a month they were allowed to be interviewed. But only a limited amount of information has been revealed.

Attacked on Seas

The essential point disclosed, however, is that the plane was over the Barents Sea at least 50 miles from the Soviet coast. This confirms that the American fliers were attacked while traveling on the high seas. Although American rights were plainly transgressed the impression prevails that the Kennedy administration even made some concessions to obtain the release of the two fliers.

Right to Attack

The arguments probably will be made by the Soviets that they have a right to attack any plane or ship that approaches their shores. In time of war this is conceded to be an enemy's privilege. But the United States and the Soviet Union today are supposed to be at peace. If the 'Cold War' means that the rules of 'Hot War' are to be applied then the United States and other western countries are missing a bet in allowing Russia's trawlers to 'fish' in waters so close to American submarine bases here and abroad. A Soviet fishing vessel approached New London when one of the latest American submarines was launched last year. When the new submarine tender from the United States was arriving at a port in Scotland last week, a Russian trawler was in the same vicinity taking pictures. Would the Americans have had the right to fire on the trawler? Under the current concept in Moscow any vessel engaged in military observation can be attacked without warning and destroyed, no matter where it is on the ocean.

Other Airmen

There were four other airmen aboard the ill-fated American plane. The body of one has been recovered. But what happened to the other three? The American government says it doesn't know, and the Russians profess also not to know.

The principle is clear—the Russians are responsible for the loss of four American airmen. Will the administration insist upon redress? Will it ask for clarification of the issues involved, so that further incidents may be avoided? Or will the hush-hush policy that began recently be continued, in the hope presumably of avoiding any sharp talk with the Soviets on any subject whatsoever?

The American people are, of course, entitled to know just what the Kennedy administration's attitude is toward the loss of American citizens on the high seas resulting from a deliberate attack without warning on American lives and property.

E & R Presents New Home For Families

A new home, especially designed for families in the Fox Cities who need more space, is now open for public inspection.

Erwin G. Rehbein, president of E & R Construction Co., Neenah, in making the announcement, feels strongly that this model will fulfill the space requirements of larger families. The home has 1877 square feet of living area.

Five steps up from the dramatic mid-level entry foyer is the main living area, including large livingroom with lovely picture window, separate dining area, spacious kitchen with birch-finish, marble cabinets and Formica work surfaces. Three twin-sized bedrooms, each with floor to ceiling walk-in wardrobe closets, coat and linen closets and complete modern bath are also in the upper level of 992 square feet.

Erwin G. Rehbein, President

Six steps down from the impressive entry foyer reveals the huge 18x24 ft. recreation room, ideal for finishing many different ways, ready for family fun and relaxation year around. PLUS there is an additional 18x24 ft. "bonus room" that can be finished as an extra bedroom with another bath, or can be used for a hobby room or workshop.

Actually, this home has all the space most families will need for many years.

The E & R company is also showing three other different models, all open every day, 1 to 8 p.m. The location is in the Glenview Park Subdivision, just south of the Springfield School on Glenview Drive, Neenah.

Two of the models have been completely furnished by H. C. Prange Co., Appleton, Dorothy Vollbrecht, interior decorator. Even if families now own a home, they will enjoy seeing these latest trends in interior decoration.

Ray McClone of McClone Lumber and Supply company says that his garages are the best buy in town. "You can save up to $100.00, pay as little as $2.80 per week and take up to 36 months to pay," Ray claims.

The reason McClone's can offer these great savings to its customers, is because of its low overhead.

The firm stated that the garage doors are all installed by its factory trained mechanics. This is the customer's guarantee of quiet, smooth operation, McClone said.

The garages are a lovely addition to your property, adding to its value. The garages have bungalow siding which gives your garage that new look, like your house, and eliminates sheathing, McClone stated.

Call McClone Lumber for a representative to call or for the firm to send a free estimate on a new garage for your home. The address is Route 2, Menasha, and the telephone number is RE 4-4574.

Actor Meisle Shows Accomplished Skill In Peer Gynt Role

Ibsen Fantasy Currently Played by Attic Theatre Uses All Lively Arts

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

William Meisle performed the Herculean task of delineating the epic character of Peer Gynt Friday night in the most ambitious production ever attempted by the Attic Theater.

Henrik Ibsen poured into the role all of the sin-ridden contradictions and wool-gathering he saw in the character of his native Norway and created something of an Everyman that at times broke through the restraints of the realism he was pioneering to soar into a subconscious imagination that, perhaps, struck closer to reality than his realism.

While the burdensome job of conveying what amounted to a solo performance would be grounds enough for praise, Meisle also achieved the equally difficult task of slipping back and forth into a dream world.

It is hard to believe that Mrs. Zoe Cloak could have found a better and more accomplished Peer than William Meisle.

The setting for this jewel of a performance by Meisle was a huge, cast-iron and a production that called for all of the facets of the lively arts: singers, dancers, actors and costumers.

Many Dances

Mr. and Mrs. Nikolai Makaroff devised and directed a bouquet of charming folk and allegorical dances, hitting a high point with a hellish characterization of the Halls of the Mountain King, but falling to a surprisingly sterile scene for Anitra, saved only by the charms of Mrs. Ginnie Haberman, Oshkosh.

Meisle also was supported by some of the Attic's finest actors, most of whom were given the opportunity to swing a gamut in a number of dissimilar roles.

William Cherkasky, Harry Millstein, Tony Carrigan and Herb Dittman had a set piece portraying French, German, English and Dutch men of the world.

Millstein also impersonated an Attic did with Peer Gynt, there is bound to be some joints that creak and some muscles that protest.

While the lyric speeches soared, the humor struck home, the spectacle clicked, in a word, the show came alive, the technical facilities ground to a halting pace that gave credence to a fear that they would give up entirely.

Tonight the Attic is scheduled to give two performances of Peer in Stansbury Auditorium: one at 7 p.m. and the other at 9:30 p.m. If Friday night's imprecise backstage persists, there will be a terribly late second curtain. Friday's performance ended near midnight.

Your Problems
Ann Advises Dateless Teen To Forget 'I', Think of 'U'

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 16 and I want a boy friend more than anything in the world. I'm having no luck whatever and I don't know why. I know girls who don't have half of my good qualities and they seem to do much better. I have listed an honest description of myself and would like you to tell me what is wrong:

1. I am cute.
2. I am nice to everyone — especially boys.
3. I am not fat.
4. I keep myself very neat and clean.
5. My clothes are not cheap and they look good on me.
6. I don't wear much make-up.
7. I talk in low tones and act lady-like.
8. I live in a beautiful home and my parents are considered social.
9. I am a fairly good student and take part in school activities.
10. I am not conceited.

I need your help with my problem. — Unsuccessful

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The key to your problem can be found in the first word of every sentence in your letter.

When you think less about "I" and more about "U" your problem will be solved.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You keep saying alcoholism is a sickness which results from emotional problems. Well, I don't buy it. It's strictly hereditary. Furthermore I see plenty of evidence in my husband's family which proves I am right.

I married a boozier from 'way back. His two brothers are almost as bad as he is, and his sister has martinis for breakfast. My father-in-law died seeing snakes, and his wife was a grade A lush. If you can tell me how it happened that the whole darned family picked up the same "sickness" I'll apologize. — Sick of Drunks

Dear Sick: Alcoholism has been studied by experts and there are a variety of theories on what causes excessive drinking. Alcoholism is not inherited in the way that blue eyes or curly hair is inherited. A tendency toward it may be in the family, however, as is the tendency toward diabetes or T.B.

In the case of your relatives the whole crowd has emotional problems they can't handle and they all chose the same escape route. But they were not born lushes as you insist.

DEAR ANN: I am happily married and we have two teenage children. My husband has a fine job and makes enough money to take care of us. I happen to hate housework and am bored to tears at home because there's not enough to do, so — I took an office job which I love. I hire a cleaning woman and laundress two days a week which is ample. My husband feels I should be home when the children come from school. I'm usually in the house by 5:45 but he says teenagers should not be allowed the free run of the place from 3:30 till almost 6 p.m.

What is your opinion? — Mrs. S.

Dear Mrs. S.: If your hus-

Woman Takes Faith, $20 On Ride Across Country

NEW YORK (AP)—"Ever get a feeling you've just got to do something?" the tiny blonde Irish grandmother asks earnestly. "Well, this trip is like that."

And so Saturday, an hour before dawn, Nora Jo O'Brien of Hollis, Long Island, started on a 75-day ride across the country mounted on her black thoroughbred, Ebony.

Her objective: To call attention to abuse of horses (especially when they're underfed, ridden with saddle sores, tranquilized in the show ring, and incidentally, to get in some kind words about youngsters.

After she waved goodbye to a special escort who saw her across George Washington Bridge to New Jersey, she was on her own. "But I'm not worried. God is with us."

Offers of Hospitality

Besides faith, she took $20. "I'm lucky if it's that much. But at every stop they're prepared for Ebony, and I eat very little. People all along the way—saddle clubs, chamber of commerce, mayors, hotels, motels, families—have offered hospitality. I believe everyone has a little of the pioneer spirit in them."

Except maybe her husband. "He says, 'Just leave me out of it.' He doesn't approve and he thinks I'm crazy to try it. But he's actually a fine person," says Jo.

File of Letters

Last January she started writing chambers of commerce and highway departments in a dozen states for help in planning her itinerary to bypass the big cities. Then offers of lodging started pouring in, and by now the correspondence file has impressive heft.

When the trail ends at Mill Valley, Calif., Jo hasn't the faintest idea how she'll get Ebony back East. "But I just feel people will help," she says.

The 5-foot, 109-pound 40ish mother of two children does have one worry, though, and it's a typically feminine one. She's concerned about entering hotel dining rooms.

Not Taking Dresses

"I'll only have riding clothes, you see. No dresses. I'm only taking breeches and a few wash and wear shirts in one of the two saddlebags."

In the other bag hooked onto the Army reconnaissance saddle is Ebony's traveling gear—curry comb, brush, sponge, hoof pick, rubbing lotions, towels, and an extra set of his special hard rubber shoes.

Jo, who came to this country from Cork, Ireland, 25 years ago, has been working closely with horses for a dozen years—at Belmont race track, as a stable manager, as a riding instructor in children's camps.

Here's to You, MISS TEEN~ a guide to good grooming and poise

BY MARY SUE MILLER

In the male mind, lovely hair is a symbol of femininity.

But to les girls, hair is something you just can't do a thing with. It never comes up to beauty standards; it refuses to glisten and stay in place, as it should. It flies or hangs limp; it is too straight or curly, too fine or coarse, too thick or thin, too dry or oily.

Why do you suppose hair is so contrary? It wants more cooing, that's why. Your hair has to be in the pink of condition before it will behave to your liking. A true-ly flattering and flawless hair style is completely out of the question until your hair is completely out of trouble.

Whatever its present state — good, bad, or indifferent — your hair's looks and manageability can be bettered. But do not expect the change to happen overnight. You must allow eight weeks for the improvement of poor hair, a month for passable hair.

Don't Abuse Brush

A brush is your hair's best friend! Brushing stimulates circulation, which in turn encourages scalp health and lustrous growth. Brushing also cleanses, aers, and polishes your hair.

Brushing does not aggravate as many devotees of pin curls believe. It actually fosters groomed curls and easy handling. Were this not so, professional hairdressers would not use a brush to arrange a fresh set.

Brushing des not aggravate oily conditions. Brushing is basic to a cure, for it brings oil floating on the scalp to the surface and this is highly desirable.

Should only excesses be allowed to remain on the scalp, they would set off other and far more serious problems. Admittedly, hair may at first look oilier for brushing, but as the scalp improves, so will appearances.

The future loveliness of your locks depends on a hundred — count 'em — a hundred strokes a day!

Don't begin brushing until you have given your brush the once-over. Is it medium stiff, neither baby soft nor scratchy? Are the ends of the bristles even? If so, well and good. If not, you should get a new one. Is it clean?

You must keep your brush immaculate, and you can by running a comb through the bristles after each use, by washing it once weekly in hot soapy water, by rinsing under very hot water and drying in the sun.

Let Head Dangle

Now begin to brush. Please do it this, the most resultful, way: Bend over from the waist and let your head dangle toward the floor. The position accelerates the circulation induced by brushing.

Start to brush at the nape of your neck and systematically circle your head, stroking from scalp to ends. Be certain that the bristles gently contact your scalp and briskly separate every strand of hair. Strokes should start slow and then gain momentum; they should massage the scalp and flick up the ends. If you flick your wrist as the brush leaves your scalp, you will have the correct action.

Brushing further cleanses and polishes your hair when you slipcover the brush in clean cheesecloth before using it. The cloth absorbs oil and dust, two of the gremlins that dull your tresses between shampoos. After use, you must wash the cloth and hang it to dry.

There is no set hour for brushing. But never let a day go by sans a hundred strokes. Once you get the hairbrush habit, your tresses will be lovelier in themselves, and you will have curls that hold a curl.

Specialized Shampoos

Every lass can wash her hair, but how well? You hardly can afford not to be a real "do-gooder." For, expertly given, a shampoo enhances your hair three ways in one swoop by cleansing, treating, and burnishing every strand.

For every type of hair — normal, dry, or oily — there are specialized shampoos. Only one that is plainly labeled for your hair type is right for you. "Any old shampoo" won't do. Bar soap never! A shampoo not only cleanses and brightens your hair efficiently, it also assists in conditioning your scalp.

Brush your hair for two minutes, then wet your head with comfortably hot water. Using your hands, work your shampoo into a lather, and massage it well into your scalp. Continue until your head resembles a froth of meringue. Rinse with warm water until it runs clear. Lather again and rinse until your hair squeaks to the touch. Those sounds show that the soap has been flushed away. Left in, soap dulls the hair.

Do you rub your hair hard with a towel to dry it? You never should. All it gets you is broken strands and tangles. To avoid damage and gain resilience wrap your head in your towel and press out the excess moisture. Continue until all drips cease. Next, use your coe-tooth comb to remove snarls, working inch by inch from the ends upward. Finish by brushing dry — and your hair will look like a halo. Or if you wish to set your hair while it is still damp, brush for two minutes, set, and then let the curls air-dry.

In warm weather, drying your hair out of doors is beneficial, as the sun and air have tonic powers. You only make the most of them, however, when you stay in the sun about 15 minutes and then move into the shade. Should you remain overlong in the sun while your hair is damp, it would begin to sizzle — really!

For Tress Distress

Slight hair and scalp problems, a little dryness or oiliness, are conquered by the foregoing methods. A head requires additional treatment, however, if it is in serious distress — if, for example, the hair drips with oil or crackles from dryness, or if the scalp continually flakes or erupts.

Oily Hair

This condition cannot be allowed to go untreated, and for reasons other than its stringy, drab look. Excessive oil in the scalp and hair can spill over onto your complexion and result in blemishes.

1. Wash that oil right out of your hair — literally! Shampoo every second or third day.

2. Three times weekly apply a scalp tonic, any one designed for oily conditions. To apply it, part your hair from the crown, like the spokes of a wheel; pat the tonic on the exposed sections of your scalp with absorbent cotton. Massage your scalp with your fingertips, using firm, rotary motions.

3. Eat sparingly of fats, fried

Family Diary

One night about a month ago came home at noon, I learned when six o'clock arrived and that she had not gone to Linda's Sally didn't, I asked John to go at all but had spent the morning outdoors and call her. This he "helping" Mrs. Smith, drying the did, lustily. He reported that he dishes, looking after Jamie and heard her answer and about five minutes later she arrived clutching a moist dime. "I would have given her a dime. . . . Several weeks passed and cried "A new family moved in though my intentions were of the next door to Linda's house and I best I didn't get over to call on helped the lady. Her name is Mrs. Smith That didn't prevent Mrs. Smith and her little boy's me from learning a good deal name is Jamie and I watched him about our new neighbors. Mr. for her while she put things in her Smith traveled — this, I thought, would explain why Mrs. Smith enjoyed Sally so much — though soon he wouldn't have to. Mrs. Smith had been a nurse and as soon as Jamie was a little older they were going to get him a dog. They had lots of books and Mrs. Smith had read so much to Jamie he knew all kinds of nursery rhymes by heart though he was only 3-years-old.

Final Addition
All in all, the Smiths seemed a fine addition to the neighborhood and when I learned that they young women standing near me were becoming members of our church, I made it a point to attend the tea our Ladies' Guild gave for the newcomers last Wednesday afternoon.

There turned out to be more newcomers than I thought and I was beginning to wonder how I was to find Mrs. Smith in the crowd when my attention was temporarily distracted by a snatch of conversation between two

"He's a dear little boy," one said, "but enough is enough. I'm raising my neighbor's child."

I was on the verge of introducing myself and saying I'd had the same problem many times myself, when the other young woman signed and said, "I know. Only in my case, it's a little girl. She's a sweet little thing, but a regular pest. There's not a day she doesn't come knocking at the door. If it weren't for Jamie who adores her I'd be tempted to hide when I see her coming."

Hide from Sally! Sweet, lovely, friendly Sally a pest! Right eous anger filled me, then slowly seeped away. I didn't bother to introduce myself right then, how- ever, but went home wondering why it is so easy to see the tire- someness of other people's chil- dren — yet so difficult to imagine other parents feeling anything but yours around!

Shoes for 1961 Are Slim, Trim

The 61 men's shoes are pointed and tapered for the slim, trim look. They're better-fitting, too, with the elasticized tops drawing the shoes closer to the foot. For casual wear there will be a wide variety of perforated footwear, with ventilated uppers that include basket weaves of straw, leather, nylon mesh and straw.

foods, and sweets. Drink lots of fruit juice.

Dry Hair

Brittle, wispy, lusterless hair and a tight, sometimes flaking scalp identify this problem.

1. Precede every shampoo with a hot oil treatment. Use olive oil or tube lanolin: apply it to your scalp and massage it in. Now wrap out a terry towel in steam- ing water and wrap your head in it. Remove when cool and re- heat. Continue for 15 minutes, then shampoo as usual.

2. Immediately after a sham- poo, and twice between times, apply a dry-hair ointment or pom- ade to your scalp and massage it in.

3. Drink at least six glasses of water daily.

Split Edges

Dry, stubborn, or split ends of hair should be trimmed off with a "wet" razor by a professional hairdresser. Don't try it yourself.

Sunburned Hair

The sun can burn your hair, just as it can your skin. A mass of straw results, and to be rid of it, the hair must be cropped close soon as he suspects that you're in and brushed twice as much — 200 strokes a day. So do take care: after an hour in hot sun, put on a hat or scarf.

player? Not boastful, heaven for- bid, but full of the firm faith of the founding fathers.

The next time you hear someone express this sentiment, grapple him to you with hoops of steel. You want him as an opponent. He will fatten your score, whether you are playing for love, money or master points.

You can afford to step out against the cautious doubler. Even if you are two or three tricks over- board you won't be punished unless your careful opponent has prac- tically all of the tickets.

You can't afford to step out against the risk-taking doubler. He'll be trying to punish you as if he's the one who's been dou- bling a contract and doubling a person.

When should you double a high contract? The textbooks, including my own, recommend a double when you expect to defeat the con- tract two tricks. What's more, you're expected to contribute a trump trick to the common cause when you double.

That's what you need for a rou- tine double. The trump trick is to make sure that the opponents don't rattle off an alarming number of tricks in trumps alone. The pro- viso that you must expect a two-trick defeat is a safety measure: if one trick goes unexpectedly sour, you will still defeat the con- tract.

The big question is how you count your tricks. Obviously, you're en- titled to count aces and well-placed kings. Count trump tricks at full value. Credit your partner with two to three defensive tricks for a normal opening bid; four tricks for a strong opening bid of one no trump; somewhat more than one trick for a defensive overcall; no tricks at all for a shutout bid.

Answer Questions
What should you count for the knowledge that declarer is going to run into bad suit breaks? How many tricks is this worth?

What should you count for the note of uncertainty or fear in de- clarer's voice? How many tricks is it worth to have a shrewd part- ner against an inexperienced de- clarer?

The answers to these questions may lead you to some doubles that are far from routine.

One of the hands from the recent national paid championship illus- trates the difference between dou- bling a contract and doubling a person.

What should East do when he has finally pushed South to four spades? Perhaps he should bid five diamonds; perhaps he should double four spades; or perhaps he should merely pass and hope to defeat the contract at 50 points per trick.

Much depends on the people at the table. If South is a good, vet- eran card player East cannot af- ford to double four spades. If West is a resourceful declarer, and the opponents are weak de- fenders, East should bid five di- amonds.

At one table, East was a fa- mous expert and South was a rather nervous lady. East wasn't sure that he wanted to double four spades, but he was quite willing to double a nervous lady.

Poor Opening Lead
West opened the jack of di- amonds, a poor opening lead since it gave declarer a chance to make the contract. See if you can spot the right line of play against the diamond opening lead, and then see if you can pick West's best opening lead.

South didn't find the right line of play. She won in dummy with the ace of diamonds and returned to the queen of hearts in the vague hope of winning nine trumps by cross-ruff together with one di- amond trick.

East stepped up with the king of hearts and returned the queen of spades to scotch the cross-ruff. Still hoping for miracles, South won in her own hand and led the ten of clubs toward dummy. West played low, and declarer optimis- tically put up dummy's king.

East won with the ace of clubs and returned a diamond to make South ruff. Declarer proceeded to ruff two hearts in dummy but then had to lose a trump trick to West's nine. She won five trump

Margaret Wears New Lowered Hem

LONDON (AP)—Princess Mar- garet has lowered the hem of her skirts. Now will British woman- hood follow?

Margaret sprang her surprise in the brief warm sunshine that bathed most of Britain yesterday afternoon. She showed up in a new suit, without a coat, at near- by Hemel Hempstead.

The suit was dark brown silk with white velvet dots and black velvet trimmed lapels. The hem of the skirt fell about 4 to 4½ inches below the knee.

With this outfit she wore a feathered pillbox hat, crocodile skin shoes and carried a croco- dile skin bag. But it was not the suit, the hat, the closed-toe shoes, or the bag that fascinated fash- ion experts — but the length of the skirt.

When women in America were wearing skirts at calf's length 16 months ago, the pretty princess blossomed out in a skirt that showed her knees. Women all over Britain followed the lead.

Loses Members

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Evangelical United Brethren church reports its membership dropped by 1,322 in the last year to 761,858 members in 4,418 or- ganized congregations, mostly be- cause of a shift of population to the cities. The denomination his- torically has stressed a ministry to rural areas and small towns.

in dummy, and one diamond trick, thus going down two tricks.

Final Result

East's score of 300 points was a well-earned top. It would be a fine result in rubber bridge, too. The moral of this little tale is not very edifying, but is eminently practical: don't let a nervous op- ponent play a difficult hand un- doubled.

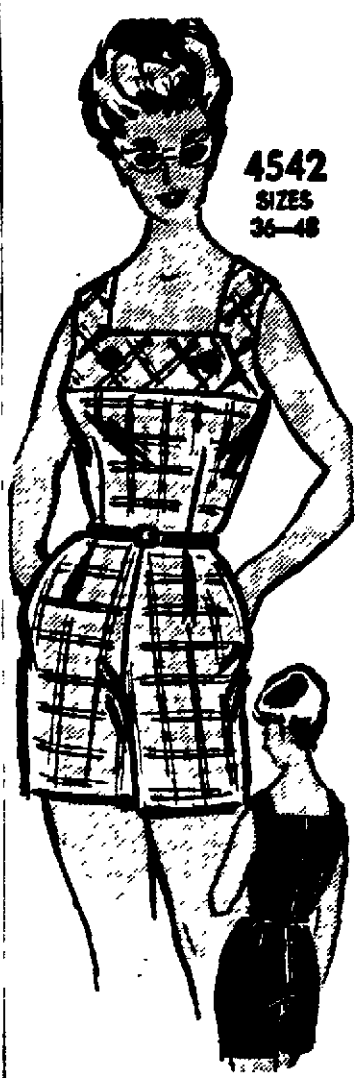

West's best opening lead is a trump. It's pretty hard to find any reasonable play for the con- tract that works after the trump opening.

After the actual diamond lead, South should ruff a diamond and let the ten of clubs ride to the queen. East's best defense is to lead hearts to make dummy ruff a second heart. Declarer leads the king of clubs from dummy to ruff out the king and jack to- gether.

Now South ruffs another heart in dummy, a diamond in his hand and a heart in dummy. Then when she leads the nine of clubs from dummy, discarding a heart, South is sure of ten tricks.

Fish, Game Commission Division Rivalry Causes Care

Seeks Closer Integration of All Sections Plus More 'Team Work'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The Conservation Commission is again worrying about the apparent failure of the posts of the far-flung state Conservation Department to work as a team.
Chairman Guido Rahr, Manitowish business and senior member of the commission who was recently returned to the chairmanship of the commission, announced as his first policy objective a closer integration of the multitude of sections, divisions and bureaus of the department that now number more than 1200 persons.
He spoke guardedly, but department officials and employees recognized his meaning instantly. The problem he cited is one that has troubled other commissioners over the years. It involves rivalry among some divisions, at best, and indications of actual animosity at worst.
The most widely recognized instance of such difficulties is the sometimes open quarrelling between the members of the law enforcement division and the technical employees of the department.
There have been abundant indications of resentment among some of the wardens, many of them men of considerable seniority trained in the field during their working careers, and the university-trained biologists and others who have become more numerous on the department payroll during the last decade, more conspicuous in terms of public recognition, and more influential in policy-making.
Commissioners say privately that they understand such currents, but they insist also that public displays can only be harmful to the department and its programs on the whole.
Aware of Wrangling
Rahr a month ago read a prepared statement at a commission meeting announcing that he was aware of such intramural wrangling, and warning that if it cannot be stopped in any other way the commission will find a way to halt it by force. One method, he suggested plainly, might be through the reorganization of the services to remove or demote the offenders.
Lester Voigt, department director, has announced the creation of a departmental committee of leading officials to help the commission resolve what he discreetly called its "organizational problems."
The two assistant directors of the agency, John Beale and George Sprecher, and the line officers of the department will compose the committee. It will report directly to Rahr.
Public Prestige
Close observers of the big department are persuaded that the causes for inter-service friction go beyond disagreements on policy between the "practical" wardens and foresters in the field, and the "scientific" men at their desks, research stations and laboratories.
A matter of public prestige is also involved, it is felt. For the first 30 years of the department's history the wardens were the most important of the personnel components of the agency. The early directors of the department came up through the enforcement ranks. During the last decade the tendency has been for the preterment of professionally trained specialists, and especially biologists. Because the wardens are located out in the state and often are popular and widely known personalities in their own districts, they sometimes have it in their power to influence public and political opinion against the wishes of his department administration and commission at Madison.
But Ideas Await Final Outcome of Termination Act
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The possibility of arranging for public use of some of the wildy beautiful recreational lands of the Menominee Indian tribe in north central Wisconsin is regarded seriously by leading state officials.
The idea cannot now be put into concrete form. The Indian community is deeply involved in political problems related to the prospective termination of federal government responsibility for the management of their affairs and their properties.
Termination Act
If the termination act is extended, it is presumed that the huge reservation with its lakes, streams and virgin timbered forests will remain a preserve of the tribe, with outsiders barred except for the few permits sold to fishermen and others.
But if the termination of federal controls is achieved as now provided by law, the prospect for some kind of an arrangement with the Indians for limited public use rights on the reservation are reasonably bright, according to interested state government leaders.
The arrangement would call for either purchase or leases by the state, with adequate compensation to the tribe.
Tribal Leadership
That the tribal leadership would respond to such suggestions is assumed on the basis of the prospective economic needs of the Indian community when it is put upon its own resources, and the hopes of some of the Indian leaders for the development of a local tourist business as source of community income.
A state park embracing some of the Wolf River frontage and some of the scenic points within the hemlock - hardwood-pine forest would provide the impetus for a local resort industry, according to some authorities. The tourist income potential of the reservation was one of the assets frequently cited by state expert consultants to the Menominee Indian study commission when termination problems were originally reviewed, and Gov. Gaylord Nelson listed the possibility of leasing park rights in the reservation in his recent "crash" conservation program submitted to the legislature.

Shows Concern On Pollution

Health Expert Sees Danger Developing In Water-Rich State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON—New water pollution problems have come with the enormous growth in pleasure boating throughout the country, according to an expert of the U.S. public health service.
Writing in a bulletin of the Wisconsin state board of health which is concerned with the pollution problems in this water-rich state, Gordon McCullum of the federal office explained that pollution problems are related to changes in population, popular habits, and technology.
On the pollution hazards of intensive boating, he wrote:
"Raw waste disposal from boats is causing concern and must be corrected. Septic disposal devices will probably soon be required equipment in all small craft, as well as the larger vessels. The public health service also has under surveillance the pollutional effects of motorboat exhaust and fuels, which have been tainting water supplies and fish flesh in waters of highly concentrated boat usage."
Federal Aids
The federal officer told Wisconsin public health workers that Wisconsin and neighboring industrial states have done a "commendable" job in water pollution control.
While experiencing great industrial expansion, they have managed at the same time to protect their recreational resources, he said.
McCullum also reported that federal aids for pollution control plants in Wisconsin have thus far involved 109 separate projects, nearly half of which have been completed. Federal aids to the State Committee on Water Pollution, he noted, account for more than half of the operations budget of that agency.

Underwater Waves Key to Temperature

Find Lakes Divided Into Layers of Various Degrees of Warmth, Coolness

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Underwater waves may be as important as surface waves in the annual cycle of warming and cooling in a lake, according to evidence gathered by two University of Wisconsin lake scientists.
The scientists — Prof. Reid Bryson and Robert Ragotzkie of the UW meteorology department — have found that underwater waves have many of the characteristics of surface waves; they travel at considerable speed, some of those measured were as high as 10 feet, and they often curl and break like the familiar whitecaps on the surface.
The flow of underwater waves was discovered by Bryson and Ragotzkie during temperature studies of Lakes Mendota and Monona — the first lake borders the University of Wisconsin campus, the second is located in northern Wisconsin.
Lake in Layers
Using a string of thermopiles—electrical temperature-measuring devices — hanging vertically in the water, the scientists found, as would be expected, that the lake, during summer, is divided into two layers, an upper warm layer and a lower cold layer. And they found, as would be expected, that where these two layers meet there exists a thermocline, where the warm layer lies on the cold layer like a blanket of light oil.
What they also found — and did not expect — was that a thermocline located right at the point of contact between the warm upper layer and cold lower layer showed rhythmic variations in temperature.
The limnologists reasoned that this could only mean that waves stream along the top of the cold layer much like waves on the surface of the lake. Subsequent measurements proved this to be the case.
The internal waves seem to follow the same general direction of movement as the surface waves of the lake. This is surprising, since the greatest concentration of energy available for producing the waves would appear to be at the downwind end of a lake.
"Where and how progressive internal waves originate remains unknown," Bryson and Ragotzkie say.
Heat Transfer
They point out, however, that internal waves may help account for the warming up of the lower lake waters during summer. Theoretically, it might be expected that the thermocline would prevent much heat transfer from upper to lower water levels.
When internal waves "break," however, they probably drag warm water into the lower layers, much like a breaking wave will trap air bubbles beneath its curling tip and drag them beneath the surface.
These internal waves may also account for the fact that there appears to be less of an oxygen deficit than might be expected in the thermocline during warm summer weather despite the fact that dead and decaying microscopic organisms collect in this layer, and that, in addition, the lower cold water usually lacks oxygen.
The Wisconsin scientists add that, in theory, there is no fundamental difference between the internal and surface waves of a lake.
"Indeed, surface waves are a special case of internal waves mixture up in screwtop cans or where the medium as well as the jars and remember to take it density changes in the vertical along on your next venture afield. and the density of the upper medium is negligible compared to that of the lower," they point out.

Here's Some Tips for Wet Weather Campers

To keep toilet tissue dry in a damp camp put it in a discarded two-pound coffee can. It fits the roll and solves the problem.
And here's another wet-weather tip: A sure-fire fire starter is lake saw dust mixed with a small amount of kerosene. Pack the mixture up in screwtop cans or where the medium as well as the jars and remember to take it density changes in the vertical along on your next venture afield. and the density of the upper medium is negligible compared to that of the lower," they point out.

An Adequate Safeguard

What can be done to reduce this tragic loss of life and property on Wisconsin's highways? Here are a few suggestions:
First, let each of us drive carefully by obeying traffic signals, by shifting from one lane to another only when sure the lane is clear, by staying a safe distance from the vehicles ahead, and by taking no chances when passing another vehicle.
To be on the safe side, stay at least one car length behind the car ahead for every 10 miles an hour of your speed. When there is a solid lane of traffic ahead, have patience. A few minutes of waiting or taking it easy, may save your life, the lives of those dear to you as well as the lives of passengers in the other vehicle.
An adequate insurance program in a dependable company is your safeguard and a real friend should the unexpected occur.

Push for Formal Forest Training

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Upper Wisconsin interests are again pushing for formal training in professional forestry at a state educational institution.
Assemblyman Willis Hutnik of Rusk and Sawyer counties is the author of a bill that proposes to direct the board of regents of state colleges to establish a professional forestry course in at least one of the nine state colleges under its jurisdiction.
The board has estimated that such a course would enroll about 100 students yearly.

Don't Let Another Hunter Claim Your Buck After It's Down

Has someone ever claimed your buck after he's been bagged and tagged by you? It may be easy to switch tags, but if you write your name on a small slip of paper, slit the hide of the animal in an inconspicuous spot and slip in the proof, your troubles will be over on that score.
If lost duck-decoy anchors have been one of your problems, read on. This sportsman uses wheel, balancing weights. Your neighborhood garage is an ideal source. The "U" form sinks into the bottom and holds — but good.
A handful of metal-case shells rattling about loose in your pocket may spook game just when you're trying to make like Daniel Boone. Put a rubber band around them to keep 'em quiet.
Try Charcoal Briquettes For Fast, Cheap Targets
For some cheap, fast-action targets, practice try small chunks of charcoal — briquettes are best. They explode when hit. It's so much fun you'll be out of ammo in no time.
If you're a deer hunter, don't feel left out; here's a tip for you. Slip a hacksaw blade into your Mexican hairless for the top of the knife sheath. If you're a good shot the pen is close to the wagon it'll come in handy for cutting the ceiling. It all makes for a perfect pelvic bone of your deer.

Winter Habitat Work At Navarino Marsh Continues on Plan

Burning and Planting Top Key Projects

BONDUEL — Winter habitat development work in the Navarino Wildlife area has been progressing favorably, according to game manager Max Morehouse, Antigo.
A 500-acre control marsh burn has been completed. Some of the marsh was not scheduled to be burned; however, a wind-blown spark ignited the unscheduled area, too. Although no firebreaks existed around the marsh, the fire was confined to Wisconsin Conservation Department marshlands by the Shioc River on the east side and surrounded by the highlands on the remaining part. The winter burning was planned to kill aspen, willow, black spruce and bog birch growth while also consuming leatherleaf and sphagnum moss. The special hope for these marsh areas is to establish an entire marsh.
Game Habitat
At present the bulldozing of a large marshy area, which contains finger-size aspen and other being carried out. Dave Walters, a Conservation Department employee, is in charge of this work which falls the trees with the Tie both ends of a 15-foot length bulldozer's large blade and leaves of debris in windrows. The bulldozer is also being used to scrape vegetation over ice for firebreaks. This is being done around a 250-acre marsh area where a spring burn is planned.
Some of the summer development plans call for discing, rototilling and some seeding of the large open areas in the recent Ganschow purchase, road construction to the Ganschow fields, timber sales, herbicide spraying of some of the willow areas, food plots and more burning.
An experimental attempt will be made in the future to entice geese onto this marsh. Rabbit brushpile construction and clover seedings will likely intensify.
Many of the Conservation Department's management roads will be gated to general travel this summer such that maintenance will not be a cumbersome burden but so that wildness of the area can be preserved.

Employment in Appleton Area Drops 2.3 Pct.

Full Recovery Anticipated by Middle of May

Employment in the immediate Appleton area is down 2.3 per cent from a month ago. It is expected to raise that same percentage by the middle of May, Fred R. Gehrke, district manager of the Wisconsin State Employment Office, says in his monthly labor market report.

The 60 firms participating in the labor market information program report 12,555 persons employed, compared to 12,851 a month ago.

Outlook for the future is very encouraging, Gehrke said.

His optimism is based on the fact that recall of laid-off workers is occurring at the rate of about 17 per thousand employed, "a rate considerably higher than a year ago."

Layoffs Cut

Also, the rate of layoffs has been cut to eight per thousand, compared to 26 per thousand last December. The new hiring rate rose from five to nine per thousand during the same period.

The employment office has tabulated the results of its testing program for high school commercial students who will graduate in June. The results are available for any interested employer.

A shortage of clerical workers, particularly with experience, continues to exist, Gehrke says.

The drop in employment was due largely, Gehrke says, to seasonal adjustments in retail trade after the holiday sales period was completed at the beginning of the new year. There was an adjustment in paper and allied products industry to meet production schedules.

Full recovery of all losses is anticipated, he said. The upturn is expected mostly in manufacturing and construction. Textile and paper groups should show the largest increase, with a little smaller increase in retail trade.

Roland L. Groves, head of the unemployment compensation department, says claims have dropped from about 2,000 in February to about 1,800. He expects congressional action to lengthen the period that laid-off workers can claim unemployment compensation will hike the number of claims again.

Part of the reason for the drop in claims, he says, was that some workers had used up all the compensation they had coming. Now that they are eligible for more they are expected to reapply.

Need Female Workers

The demand for female factory workers exceeds the present supply, Gehrke noted.

Foster Addition Bids Are $40,000 Under Estimate

Total Cost $235,433, Not $275,000; Board of Education Awards Contracts Immediately

The new addition to Foster School is going to cost $35,000 less than anticipated.

The Appleton Board of Education opened bids Friday, then immediately awarded contracts because it wants the addition ready for use by the second semester of next school year.

Total cost of the new addition will be $235,433, instead of the $275,000 expected. The board will ask the city council for $240,000, so there will be a reserve fund to take care of unexpected expenses.

Construction contracts awarded by the board total $187,017. They are for general construction, electrical, heating and ventilating and plumbing.

Furniture and equipment for the school will cost $29,774, architects fees are $11,221 and site improvement $1,000. Temporary heating connections and fuel to heat the addition while being completed totals another $2,000. There also is a 2 per cent contingency fund.

The general construction contract was awarded to Precourt Construction Co., Oshkosh, on its low base bid of $128,000, plus two alternates, for a total of $129,100. There were 11 bids for the general contract, all from firms in the Fox Cities and Oshkosh. The bid of Steiner Construction Co., Appleton, was rejected because its bid form was only partially filled in, and one part was incorrect.

Highest of the 10 accepted bids was for $144,905.

The electrical contract was awarded to Langstadt Inc., Appleton, on its bid of $17,000, the lowest of five. Highest was for $20,790.

Heating, Ventilating, Plumbing Wenzel Bros., Inc., was awarded both the heating and ventilating and the plumbing contracts. Its heating and ventilating bid is $28,917, and the plumbing bid, $12,000.

There were six bidders for each of the two contracts.

Highest heating and ventilating bid was for $36,280 and highest for plumbing was $16,000.

The addition will have eight classrooms, library, crafts room and several small utility rooms. Construction style will match the existing building.

Youth's Problems Shared by Adults, Speakers Conclude

Green Bay Man Keynotes Talk on Morals at Governor's Conference

BY BONNIE BARSTOW

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The problems of youth in a rapidly changing world aren't problems only of youth; they are shared with adults and with preschool children. This was the conclusion of speakers at the Seventh Governor's Conference on Children and Youth Friday afternoon.

The approximately 2,000 adults and teenagers at the conference had their choice of seven simultaneous forum programs and then 39 simultaneous workshop sessions to discuss a wide variety of questions about young people and their relations with adults.

Russell S. Way, Green Bay superintendent of schools, keynoted discussion of moral standards by urging that adults take the time and occasion to listen to young people. This doesn't mean, however, that adults accept whatever is heard and act without consideration, he said.

Family Unit Altered

"The closely compact unit where father and mother lived together in pleasant harmony and where children looked to the home for love, direction and guidance has undergone radical change," Way said. "Father is no longer the sole provider and foreman of the family affairs."

Way suggested that the family could be strengthened by giving back to it responsibilities and activities important in the lives of children, such as leisure time activities, recreation and guidance.

Changing patterns of family living were discussed also in a forum on mental health, where Lawrence P. Blum, of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, formerly of Appleton, pointed out that, as influence of father declines, the influence of other "father" figures in the community, such as school authorities, church people and law enforcement, also declines.

Excessive permissiveness is typical of parents who live and work in a bureaucratic setting and excessive strictness, almost rigidity, in child rearing is typical of parents who depend on entrepreneurial enterprise, Blum said.

Mental Health Slighted

On the same panel, Dr. John Altmyer of Waukesha County Guidance Center, said there should be more emphasis on the mental health of preschool children.

A panel discussing "The Road to Opportunity" criticized the commonly held view that, when a person finishes high school, his only choices are whether to go to college, work, or enter the armed services. Speakers pointed out the paradox of a shortage of skilled workers at the same time that there is widespread unemployment, and called for more advertising of the opportunities offered by vocational and adult schools' technical courses, apprenticeship programs and evening courses.

Robert O. Sands, Clintonville High School business teacher, cited a survey he made among young people of Appleton, Hortonville, New London and Clintonville. Although many of the teenagers outside Appleton were interested in technical training and were aware that Appleton Vocational and Adult School exists, few knew about the type of pro-

Spring Road Pupil Keeps Spelling Title

OSHKOSH — Kristi Wigstadt, a 13-year-old seventh grader from Spring Road School in the Town of Menasha, repeated as Winnebago County spelling champion in finals held at the courthouse this morning.

She correctly spelled the words "eudemonic," missed by the runner-up, Lois Graham, 13, an eighth grader from Waukau School, and the word "choriamb," to win the crown for the second consecutive year.

She won on the fifth round with each opponent going down in order. Cynthia Doughty, 13, eighth grader from Patch School, Omro, missed on "weird." Sandy Hall, 13, Winnebago eighth grader, misspelled: "incessate," and Elizabeth Brayton, 13, Witt School seventh grader, missed on "conchology," all against Kristi. Kristi next will compete April 29 at Madison in the state spelling contest.

Correction

MENASHA — Reference to 1960 earnings of Marathon Division of American Can Co. in Friday's Post-Crescent was in error. The Post-Crescent story, adapted from an article in the current issue of "Maralog," division employees' publication, stated: "Marathon earnings increased. . . . It should have stated "Marathon sales increased. . . . The Post-Crescent regrets the error."

Judge Gives Up; Defendant Suggests His Own Sentence

Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmieg threw up his hands and let a defendant sentence himself.

When Adolf H. Ristau, 63, 814 S. Pierce Ave., approached the bench, the judge said, "Well, Adolf, I see you're back to see me again. You were here the day before yesterday, weren't you?"

Ristau agreed, and added, "If you had given me the alternative of four days, I wouldn't be here today." He had paid a fine of $10, to which the alternative was four days in jail.

Ristau then admitted another charge of drunkenness.

"You've been before me at least 25 times," the judge said. "I've given you short sentences, but you keep coming back. I'll let you be the judge. What would you do?"

"Well, judge, your honor," Ristau said, "I guess $10 or four days."

"All right," the judge said. Adolf decided to sit this one out in jail.

Whys, Wherefores of Fox Cities Weather Told in 30-Year Report

Figures From Observations Made For Government in Appleton

All the whys and wherefores of elevation is 742 feet above sea level. Climate conditions in Appleton approximate the surrounding area. The land has a gentle slope and the soil is generally red.

A 30-year weather summary has been released in a detailed data lacustrine clay. Original vegetation was sugar maple, basswood in Appleton, and by the U. S. Department of Commerce Weather Bureau and Wisconsin Crop Reporting Service.

Those interested in weather and what it has been like recent seasons compared to "way back when," will find many interesting facts in the summary.

For instance Appleton ground-after mid-November and usually is safe to walk on by Christmas. Ice depths generally ranges from two to three feet. It usually breaks up during early April, and the lake is normally clear by April 13.

There is considerable temperature range from season to season and from year to year. In the 30-year period, the number of days in a year with 90 degrees or more has varied from 27 in 1936 to none in 1951. In July, 1936, Appleton recorded its record high of 107 degrees. The next highest was 101 in August, 1946. The days of zero or colder have varied from 39 in 1936 to four in 1951.

Nine inches of rain were reported June 11, 1922, in Appleton. The lake usually begins to freeze and

About 55 per cent of the average annual precipitation falls during a five-month period of May through September.

Likelihood of an inch or more of rain in a seven-day period is three times in 10 years in June. At the end of August, it is likely less than twice in 10 years. The likelihood of a 7-day dry period is about one in 10 in June and two in 10 in August.

Rain amounting to 1.20 inches in an hour, 1.90 inches in six hours or 2.6 inches in 24 hours is likely about once in two years.

Snow Varies

Snowfall varies greatly from year to year. Only 23 inches fell in 1958 and even less this winter—18 and a fraction inches. In 1959, 90 inches of snow fell. Snow falls an average of 196 hours a year. The greatest amount of snow in one day, nine inches, fell in 1955.

Prevailing winds generally are from the west. Annual prevailing winds are northwest, 19 per cent; west, 12 per cent; and southwest 23 per cent.

Average wind velocity is 12 miles an hour. April and November are the windiest months with the average 13 miles an hour. Extreme winds usually are from the southwest, south or west.

Dates of Freeze

Winter maximum relative humidities average in the low 80s while minimums average in the mid 70s. Summer averages are mid 80s and low 90s.

Last date of a 32 degree freeze usually is about May 3. The first freeze normally is about Oct. 14. The growing season usually is about 164 days.

Weather records for Appleton first were kept by Prof. R. Z. Mason and J. C. Foye at Lawrence College from 1856 through 1871. The records are on file at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.

A climatological station was set up on the north bank of the Fox River Jan. 1, 1893, and observa-

New Fight Looms On Uniformity Rule

County Board Association Scores Victory Against Repeal

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The Wisconsin County Boards Association is developing a new argument in its resistance to proposals to abandon the uniformity rule in county government.
The county is as important as a branch of the state administration as it is as a local unit of government, the association told the legislature as it scored another victory against those who were driving for the repeal of the uniformity clause of the state constitution which makes the county board form mandatory for all of the counties of Wisconsin.
Even in an era of increasing urbanization, the Association added, there is little evidence that the counties have entered areas of local government responsibility to any significant extent.

Neenah Fire Loss Declines

Roof, Chimney Blazes Account for One-Third of Cost

NEENAH — Fire loss and per capita valuation fire loss both showed a drop in 1960 from 1959, the annual report released by Neenah Fire Chief John Zick shows.
Total fire loss last year was $23,210.47. This compares with a loss of $33,955 in 1960 and $45,402 in 1959. The per capita fire loss, based on an equalized valuation of $108,765,000 was 77 cents. This compares with a national average of $6.97.
Roof and chimney fires accounted for $8,147.81 in losses, more than one-third of all fire losses. The second greatest cause of fire loss was matches and sparks which accounted for $4,426.67.
Fires started by cigarettes caused $1,890.97 damage, mostly to contents of buildings.
The fire department spent a total of 116 hours 21 minutes at fires in 1960. This was nine hours more than in 1959 and 36 hours more than in 1958.
A total of 816 ambulance calls were made, 216 of which were emergency calls. The calls were divided with 429 in Neenah, 331 in Menasha and 56 in the county.
A total of 1,634 commercial fire prevention inspections were made and 285 defects were found. There were 48 school inspections and 38 industrial inspections.

Oshkosh Asks Water Main Project Bids

1961 Program to Solve North Side Pressure Problem

OSHKOSH — Bids for the 1961 water department expansion program will be opened April 18 and are expected to be awarded by the council the following day.
City Manager R. V. Harbaugh, in his weekly report letter, said the 1961 program will virtually solve water pressure problems on the north side and increase the dependability of the water plant. Obsolete equipment in the plant will be replaced and a bad electrical situation there corrected.
The 1961 main extensions will circle the north side of the city and eliminate many dead-end mains. A similar water main extension south of the river would practically solve the city's distribution problem.
10 Per Cent Saving
The city manager said sewer bids opened this week and awarded Wednesday night represent a saving of nearly 10 per cent on the estimates. Construction will begin within 10 days and should be completed before the end of October.
Another saving of $1,200 was secured, he said, by awarding the contract for the tote baskets for the new swimming pool to an Oshkosh firm, Wald Wire and Manufacturing Co., which was able to meet specifications at an extremely favorable price to the city over nationally advertised brands.

Proposal to Lease State Lands Opposed

Mining Firm Says It Is Necessary For Operations

MADISON (AP)—“A mineral grab bag” would be opened by a proposal to allow state lands and lake beds to be leased for 75 years for mineral development, the Assembly Conservation Committee was told Wednesday.

“If we pass this bill, new pressures will build up to open other state park lands to mining,” said David Tillotson of Watertown, president of the Milwaukee County Audubon Society.

Representatives of the New Jersey Zinc Co. said the bill was necessary to enable it to carry out mining operations in Sawyer County.

Cost of Operating
“With the high cost of operating, anything under 75 years just isn’t practicable,” said Edward Omerik of Spooner, an attorney for New Jersey Zinc.

Firm representative said there may be valuable deposits of iron ore and other minerals in an area of Sawyer County containing a 40-acre deer reserve and several lakes owned by the state.

The company hopes to start test drilling May 1.

Assemblyman Willis Hutnik, R-Tony, said the bill “would let northern Wisconsin take advantage of the resources we have.” Hutnik said the search for minerals in Sawyer County could help bring prosperity back to depressed areas.

Employ 100 Men

The mine eventually would employ about 100 men, said John Hague of Platteville, a geologist for New Jersey Zinc. Hague said the Sawyer County area is regarded as “one of our most promising projects.”

A representative of the State Conservation Department, Emil Kaminski, opposed the authorization of long-term mineral leases on state lands.

Legislation as broad as this requires more study,” Kaminski said.

Mrs. John McEwan of Milwaukee, representing the National Campers and Hikers Association, also opposed the bill.

A bill to pay half the cost of the state fox bounty out of the general fund also was opposed by Tillotson and Mrs. McEwan. Currently the Conservation Department provides $175,000 in bounties paid to fox hunters out of its budget.

Going Steady, Pregnancy, Conduct Codes Discussed at Workshop

BY BONNIE BARSTOW Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Is going steady good or bad? Should a pregnant girl be allowed to stay in high school? How much should teenagers confide in their parents? Can codes of conduct raise moral standards?

These were among questions a standing room only crowd of Wisconsin high school students, and some parents, discussed freely Friday afternoon at a workshop on morals in dating and courtship, at the Governor's Conference on Children and Youth.

“I went steady with a girl once,” one boy commented. The girl was jealous whenever he looked at another girl, and he concluded playing the field was more fun, for it offered “diversified experiences,” he said.

But a girl who has gone steady for three years said she's had lots of fun, and her parents and her steady boyfriend's parents have become close friends.

Going steady is the thing to do in many high schools, the teenagers brought out. In some schools, when a girl dates a boy twice, word goes out that they're going steady, and no other boys will ask her out — especially if the one she's dated is a football player.

One girl estimated that three-fourths of the girls in her class were going steady, and said anyone who wasn't was known as a “two-timer.”

A father asked what parents' responsibilities should be in teenagers' dating.

“Kids know right from wrong,” a boy answered. “It's up to them.” He said he wouldn't ask his parents whether he should go steady with a girl, because “they'd think it's all wrong.”

A girl said she would ask her parents. “They've been through it,” she explained.

Avoid Embarrassment

Several young people said they found it easier to talk to one parent than the other. A mother suggested that one of the best ways in which parents become close to their children is through washing dishes and doing other work together.

A boy said he didn't think a pregnant girl should be forced to drop out of high school, but a girl in the group argued that, because of embarrassment to the pregnant girl and her classmates, she should finish her education outside regular classes.

“A girl should think of the embarrassment when she goes out with that kind of guy,” another boy commented.

Some in the workshop said that, if early marriages are made to appear happy, other young people may be more inclined to marry in high school.

A college girl urged the younger people to set their own high personal moral standards, because many people they will meet close to their children is through washing dishes and doing other work together.

A boy said he didn't think a

State Can't Afford to Neglect Youth

Governor Urges Fulllest Development Of Greatest Resource

MADISON (AP)— Wisconsin can not afford to neglect the fullest development of its greatest natural resource — its youth, Gov. Gaylord Nelson said today.

“We could be poorer by far in the realm of material things and remain rich if our young people were given a full opportunity to develop,” Nelson told the concluding meeting of the Governor's Conference on Children and Youth.

Nelson said there has been “some progress” of which Wisconsin can be proud.

Plans are up for bid for a $475,000 forestry camp in the Black River Falls area for delinquent youngsters, he said.

Vocational Schools Aided
Vocational school aids have been increased by $1.3 million a year in his administration, the governor added.

Nelson said three proposed camps will be located in Polk County, in the Rhinelander area and in the Kettle Moraine Forest of southeastern Wisconsin.

Nelson warned delegates that these programs “are but a step along the way” and that, “there is no end” to the work needed to help Wisconsin's youth to fully develop their own and the state's resources.

Nelson proposes to spend $2.5 million on the camp program as part of the $50 million conservation plan he has asked the Legislature to adopt. Financing would come from a penny-a-pack boost in cigarette taxes.

600 Openings

Boys between the ages of 16 and 19 would be eligible to apply for the 600 openings the camps would provide. Campers would work on fish, game, forest and park improvement projects, and be paid $18 a week plus room and board.

The governor said that within a 50-mile radius of the camps, the Conservation Department estimates it has a 30-year backlog of work involving parks, forests, wetlands and fishing grounds.

Each camp would be operated 12 weeks during the summer and accommodate two groups of 100 boys for a six-week period.

Ready This Summer

The governor said that if the Legislature acts on his proposal “with all possible speed,” the Interstate Park Camp near Black River Falls could be ready for use this summer. The Rhinelander camp is scheduled to open in the summer of 1962, and the Kettle Moraine camp in 1963.

Work projects at the interstate camp would send details to Polk, St. Croix, Burnett, Washburn, Barron, Dunn and Pierce counties. At the Rhinelander camp, the boys would work on conservation projects in Oneida, Forest, Langlade and Lincoln counties. At Kettle Moraine, more than 74,000 acres of public lands would be available for projects in Sheboygan, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, Waukesha, Jefferson, Dodge, Washington and Fond du Lac counties.

Lawrence Has First 1961 Bicycle Trip

The first bicycle trip of the season under Arthur C. Denney's expanded Lawrence College recreation program will begin at 1 p.m. today from the campus to Sunset Point on the Fox River.

Denney has arranged with a local bicycle shop to make available 25 bicycles for the trip. Several of the bicycles are tandems. Denney also has equipment for outdoor cookery and camping which is checked out at Memorial Union. He has planned a Crystal River float trip for May 21.

In organizing a bicycle club, the first at the college in 15 years, Denney received almost 200 responses.

Professor to Talk About Civil War

OSHKOSH — “Wisconsin in the Civil War” will be discussed by Dr. Frank Klement, Marquette University history professor, at the Oshkosh public museum at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. His lecture is open to the public.

Gary Player Shoots 68 to Tie Palmer For Masters Lead

Rosburg Slips to 73, Trails By 4 at Half-Way Mark

BY JERRY LISKA
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Palmer Method was challenged today by a jaunty South African who writes his own golf ticket as the silver anniversary Masters Tournament sped into its third round—a virtual two-man show.

The deadlocked leaders—Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, and Gary Player, the PGA top money winner from Johannesburg—carried a four-stroke lead over 36 other pros and three amateurs into 18-hole semifinal.

The tied pacesetters reached the halfway mark of the 72-hole medal play classic with 137s, seven under par.

Player was the only shooter on Augusta National's sunny, scenic acres Friday who refused to concede that Palmer is a gold-plated cinch to win second straight Masters and his third in four years.

Player sniped the par 72, 6,980-yard course for five birdies in a 35-33-68 round. That put the pressure on first-round leader Palmer, who shot a 69.

The yips apparently hit bespectacled Bob Rosburg, who matched Palmer's 68 Thursday but wavered to a 73 and a third place grading of 141 at 36 holes.

A stroke behind Rosburg was Don January, who rallied for the only other 68 second-round score and moved into fourth spot with 42, two under par for the distance.

After that, it was a cavalry charge in the quest for the winner's purse which could exceed Palmer's $17,500 swag last year since the base $20,000 over-all purse—$5,000 to the champ—is fattened by total receipts for the four-day meet.

The folks are swarming here. An estimated 25,000 attended Friday. Last year $70,000 was paid off to the players.

Knotted at 143, six strokes back of Palmer and Player, were seven players—pros Byron Nelson, 49, a two-time Masters champion, Ken Venturi, Lionel Hebert, Tommy Bolt, Ted Kroll, and Walter Burkemo, and the top amateur, Charley Cox—twice U.S. amateur champion.

Only one contender was notched

HORTONVILLE — The Hortonville High School baseball team nipped New London, 1-0, behind the 4-hit pitching of Fran Schmelzer here Friday afternoon. The temperature was around 40 degrees for the season opener.

With two out and a 1-2 count on him, Dick Flunker hit a line drive over second base to drive in Roger Mulroy from second in the bottom half of the fifth. Mulroy had stolen second after walking.

Both pitchers went the distance. The Bulldogs' Jim Winckler gave up only three hits.

Arizona State Gets 13 in 8th To Down UW

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona State scored 13 runs in a wild eighth inning Friday afternoon to beat Wisconsin 15-9 in baseball.

The Badgers also dropped a 5-3 decision to Claremont College in a morning game at Mesa, Ariz.

Arizona State sent 17 men to the plate in the wild inning. The team scored three times before getting a hit on a combination of two errors, two walks and a hit batsman.

The big blow of the rally were a grand slam homer by Paul Runge and a three-run homer by Ed Littleton.

Wisconsin got six of its runs on five hits in the sixth, including a grand-slam home run by John Kleinschmidt.

In the morning game Claremont bunched all its runs in the third inning. Pat Richter had a triple and one RBI for Wisconsin.

Bays to Appear In Cleveland

CLEVELAND — The Green Bay Packers are included on the home schedule of the Cleveland Browns, it was announced here Friday.

The Packers will face the Browns in Municipal Stadium Oct. 15. The National Football League's complete schedule has not been released as yet.

The Packers and Browns will be meeting in league competition for the first time since 1956, when Cleveland scored a 24-7 victory at Milwaukee.

Phils Hand Pirates Third Straight Loss

Twins Tip Tigers, 1-0, Behind Pascual; Versailles Scores Run

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Just when they should be getting a sharp edge, pitchers of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates are being bombed.

Only Bob Friend has been consistently in command, and Manager Danny Murtaugh already has tapped the big right-hander as his opening day pitcher at San Francisco Tuesday.

But the way the other frontliners on the staff have been belted of late is enough to make Murtaugh swallow his chaw. Tuesday, Vern Law was rapped for eight runs by Detroit, and the next day the Tigers went to work on Vinegar Bend Mizell for 11 runs.

Then, after a day off, the Philadelphia Phillies took up the attack, scoring six runs off southpaw Harvey Haddix in the sixth and handing the Bucs their third straight defeat, 7-4, at Wichita.

Pascual Shines
Elsewhere, a trio of sore-armed pitchers indicated last year's miseries are in the past. Camilo Pascual gave up just five hits for eight shutout innings as the Minnesota Twins beat Detroit 1-0 at Lakeland, Fla. Gary Bell was touched for a pair of home runs, but made it easily through seven innings as the Cleveland Indians slugged the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 at Las Vegas. And Ike Delock of the Boston Red Sox allowed five hits and one run in seven innings for a 4-1 decision over Chicago's Cubs at Houston.

Cincinnati made it three in a row over Milwaukee, 3-2 in 13 innings at Charlotte, N.C., and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Yankees 8-6 at St. Louis in the only other games scheduled.

A two-run homer by Bob Malkmus was the big blow for the Phils against Haddix. Robin Roberts started for the Phils and gave up a two-run homer in the first inning by Dick Stuart, ending his spring shutout string at 24 innings. Don Hoak also

Packers' New Seats are On the Way

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — The Packers' new seats are on their way. The forms, that is.

Contractor George Hougard, whose engineers will start staking out the south area around the stadium Monday, said the seat forms were sent out of California Monday and should arrive here April 12 when the work will start.

The Varsity Pre-Cast Seat Co. is presently building the Dodgers' new stadium in Chavez Ravine in Los Angeles and the National Stadium in Washington. Varsity forms were used in construction of City Stadium in 1957, with Hougard as contractor.

"We took out the building permit Thursday," George said, "and now we'll have to check out the lighting system with the Public Service. We may have to move the poles at the south end or extend the cables."

A total of 6,200 new seats will be built as extensions to the east and west stands at the south end. Work will be finished in time for the Labor Day game.

KAUKAUNA — An organizational meeting for candidates for the Kaukauna Klubbers baseball team will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the council chambers of the municipal building.

Villanova Picks Jack Kraft as New Cage Coach

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Jack Kraft, a highly successful high school basketball coach, steps into college basketball on Monday as coach of the Villanova squad.

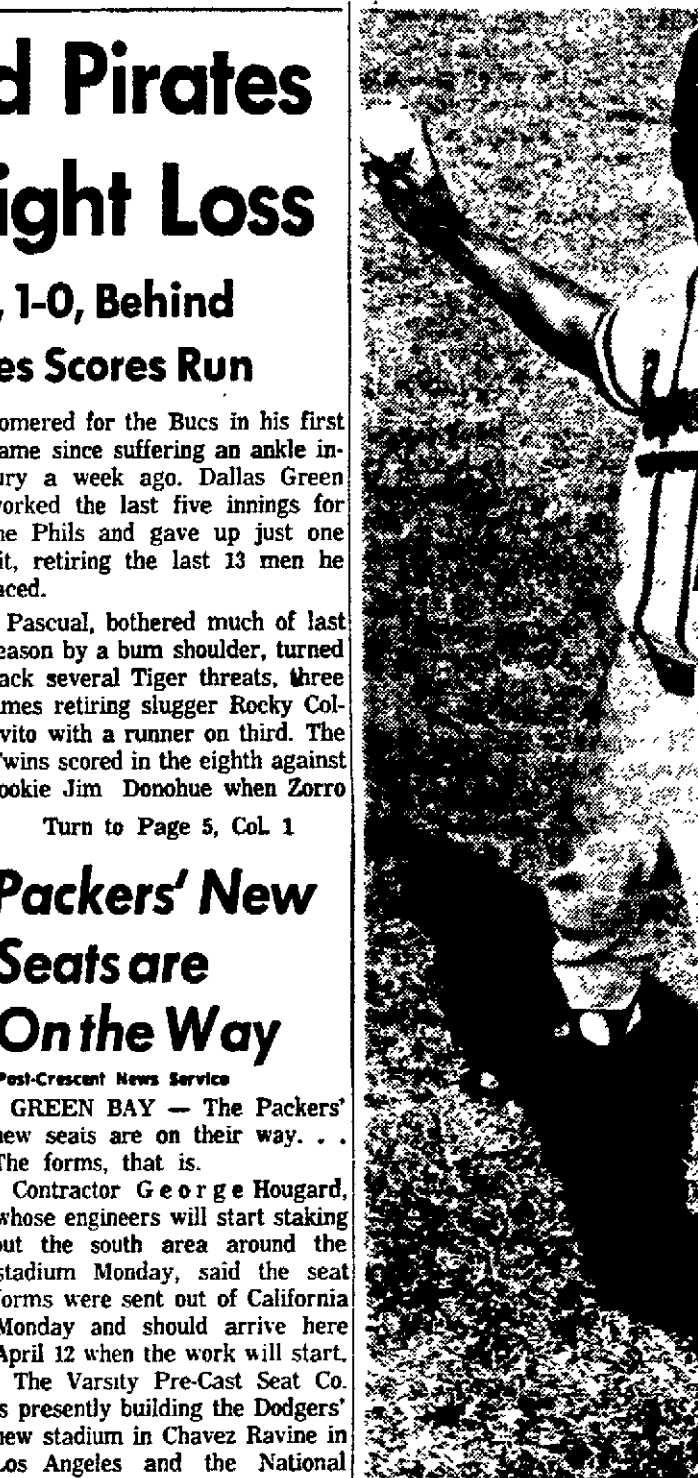

"I don't know too much about the personnel at Villanova," the 40-year-old Kraft said. "The first thing I'm going to do is get myself acquainted and start recruiting."

Kraft's appointment Friday to succeed Al Severance came as a surprise. He had not been mentioned publicly as one of the many men being considered for the job.

Kraft is finishing his second year as basketball and baseball coach at Malvern Prep.

Reds' Rookie Belts Homer In 13th To Defeat Braves

Nunn Gets Decisive Drive Off Cloninger; Spahn Goes First 6 Innings in Tune-Up for Opener

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Warren Spahn, the old master who is counted on to lead the Milwaukee Braves to the top—or near it—in the National League baseball race this year, continues to look good in spring exhibition games.

The 39-year-old southpaw who hasn't lost a game in the exhibition series, pitched six innings Friday against the Cincinnati Reds. He blanked them for five innings but then gave up two runs in the sixth before he retired to rest for his assignment of hurling the opening league game for his club at Milwaukee next Tuesday.

Spahn's teammates, however, couldn't do more than match the Reds' two runs and had to play 13 innings before they dropped a 3-2 decision to the Reds.

The Reds scored their winning run on a homer by rookie hurler Howie Nunn who parked a ball out of the park in the 13th inning and then pitched his way out of trouble in the last half of the frame.

Nunn had taken over in the 11th inning and his deciding home run was at the expense of rookie Tony Cloninger, a Milwaukee curve-ball specialist.

Davey Moore Favored, 3-1

Battles Valdez In Defense of Featherweight Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Youthful Danny Valdez, who a few months ago was little known outside his neighborhood in the shabby side of east Los Angeles, takes aim at a golden target tonight.

Valdez, a mere 21, with only 22 professional fights to his record, takes on titleholder Davey Moore for the featherweight championship of the world.

The 3-1 odds and most of the experts say the likeable kid won't hit the jackpot, that 27-year-old Moore, an equally likeable young man from Springfield, Ohio, is too good, too experienced, to lose this 15-round encounter.

The match goes on, non-televized and non-broadcast, at about 9:30 p.m. PST at the Olympic Auditorium.

Hope for 7,000
Co-promoters Cal Eaton and George Parnassus hope for a crowd of 7,000 or more and a gate of $40,000 up.

Moore, beaten but once in five years and then by a lightweight in a non-title fight, rates as one of the best pound-for-pound boxers in action today, and one of the more exciting gladiators. He can knock a man out, quickly.

Valdez gained ranking in the featherweight division top 10 by twice whipping the No. 1 contender, Ricardo Gonzalez of Argentina, late last year. Hence the title shot.

A pleasing and sincere young man on his feet, orally speaking, Valdez observed:

"Davey's psychology rests with the fact he is the champion. But that won't bother me one bit."

Said Moore, a wide grin on his face: "Since I've been champion, I've been eating steaks and caviar. I want to keep on eating them."

MILWAUKEE (AP) — You can't forget about bringing some of your favorite home town brew ordinance and is requested to check the forbidden goods until he leaves the premises.

If the violator is uncooperative, the policeman takes over.

Conviction carries a penalty of up to 90 days in jail or a fine of up to $50.

Ticket takers also will have warning cards, and persons with contraband will be asked to use a nearby checking station for the beverages before passing through the turnstiles.

Expect 300,000 Fans To See Major League Openers Next Week

Washington's Donovan to Oppose Chisox' Early Wynn in Special Inaugural Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 300,000 baseball fans are expected to attend the nine openers when the major leagues open their 1961 season next week.

Washington gets the traditional jump on the other clubs with a special inaugural at the nation's capital Monday. The opposition will be the Chicago White Sox and a sellout crowd of 27,419 is expected to watch President Kennedy throw out the first ball before right-hander Dick Donovan of the new Senators opposes Early Wynn, the White Sox veteran.

All other teams, including the new Los Angeles Angels get underway Tuesday. The largest crowd probably will be in Los Angeles where the Dodgers will play the Philadelphia Phillies under the lights before approximately 50,000.

The schedule, attendance and probable pitchers for Tuesday's games follow:

MENASHA — Damen Insurance (De Pere Pennings), and Menasha advanced to the semi-finals of the St. John open senior basketball tournament with wins Friday night over Appleton (Pitz and Treiber) and Hortonville, respectively.

St. Mary meets Antigo at 8 p. m. today for the remaining semi-final berth. Manitowoc is the other semi-finalist.

Pennington never trailed in beating Appleton, 41-30. Menasha erased an 11 point half-time deficit to blast Hortonville, 56-54.

"Corkey" Clumpner paced the Pennings team with 21 points as free throws spelled the difference. Appleton outshot De Pere from the floor, 52-50, but made only six charity tosses to Pennings' 17. Pennings committed only seven fouls.

Marty Schultz paced the losers with 15 points.

Dave Ristau scored 27 points, 24 of them in the second half, to lead Menasha (Tietz Insurance) past Hortonville, 56-54. Menasha trailed, 14-7, as the end of the first quarter and 33-22 at the half.

Ristau rammed through 16 points in the third quarter to put Menasha ahead.

Dick Emerich led Hortonville scorers with 16 points while Herman Schwebbs had 12.

St. Mary will be led tonight by the same boys that led the St. Mary High School squad to second place in the state Catholic tournament and the consolation title at Rhode Island.

Except for the homers by the brothers Sherry—pitcher Larry and catcher Norm—Bell had the Dodgers in hand. The Indians collected 17 hits, 11 of them good for eight runs off Johnny Podres, but were blanked in the middle three frames by Larry Sherry.

Delock struck out three and walked none while Carroll Hardy unloaded a two-run homer against Cub starter Glen Hobbie and Billy Harrell added a solo shot.

Morton, who was booed after a three-round decision in the opening round of action Thursday, belted out Jerry Pellegrini of New Orleans, La., in the opening round of their quarter-final bout at 132 pounds.

Shawano's Jim Caldwell won his second match at 135 pounds by outpointing Tony Kanip of And-lett, Utah in three rounds.

Another Madison battler, Bob Christopherson, gained the finals at 178 pounds by outpointing Lindy Lindmeyer of Vancouver, B.C.

An ABC Headache Paul Krumske, 'Non-Classic' Bowler, Belts 699 Series

DETROIT (AP) — Because he rolled a hefty 699 series Friday night, veteran Paul Krumske may have given the American Bowling Congress its first big classic division headache.

Thanks to his 247-205-247 contribution, the Mont Clare Pontiac team of Chicago took fourth place in the regular team division. The team totaled 3,012, placing it 15 pins behind leading STU's Drive in of Urbana, Ohio.

Why Krumske, a top-ranking star for three decades, is not a member of the classic division is a question which is likely to puzzle thousands of bowlers. Mont Packed between 146 and 149—cutoff point for the final 36 holes—were 24 players, among them three-time Masters champion Sammy Snead and two-time winner Ben Hogan, each at 147.

Among those who fell by the wayside were seven former Masters champions, including 1953 winner and 1956 U.S. Open champion Cary Middlecoff; three-time Masters king Jimmy Demaret; and Horton Smith, the 1934 inaugural winner and also 1936 champ.

Other ousted winners were Gene Sarazen (1935); Craig Wood (1941); Herman Keiser (1946); and Claude Harmon (1948).

Other casualties included former U.S. Open champions Julius Boros and Ed Furgol and last year's British Open champion, Kel Nagle, who finished 151 or worse.

Clare, furthermore, competes in the Chicago Classic League, one of the nation's top tenpin loops.

Not Easily Explained

How Krumske managed to bowl in the regular division while hundreds of bowlers of lesser skills and reputations were forced to compete in the classic (professional) division is not easily explained.

"I don't fit into the ABC's definition of a classic bowler," Krumske said. "I derive less than one-quarter of my income from bowling and I am not a member of the professional bowlers association. I talked the matter over with ABC officials extensively before I bowled."

Should Krumske sprint into the all-events lead today — with the help of Friday night's 699 — the ABC will have a lot of explaining to do.

Red Wings Play Without Two Stars

DETROIT (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks, who have gone longer without winning the Stanley Cup than any other team in the National Hockey League, takes a one-game lead into the second game of the 1961 cup finals tonight against the Detroit Red Wings.

Not since Bill Stewart's 1938 team have the Hawks won hockey's most coveted prize. To end the 23-year famine Chicago must defeat a team accustomed to playoff pressure.

The Hawks have made the playoffs only four times in the last 15 years. In that same span, Detroit has missed the playoffs only once. It has been 17 years since Chicago competed in the finals. Eight times in that stretch Detroit has been in the final round.

Scoring all three of their goal inside the first 14 minutes of play, the Hawks captured a 3-2 decision in the series opener in Chicago Thursday night. Detroit's Olympia Stadium will be the site of the second game in the best-of-seven showdown.

The Cardinals figure to be tough again. Larry Jackson's injury—a fractured jaw—may set them back a little but they have a solid pitching staff headed by Ernie Broglio, Bob Miller, Ray Sadecki, Curt Simmons and Al Ci-Lopez. The pitching, however, is thin with Whitey Ford the only dependable starter. Bob Turley, Ralph Terry, Art Ditmar, Bill Stafford and Jim Coates are the other starters.

Evenly Balanced

Dodger pitching is the most re-spect in the National League. Spahn, Lew Burdette and Bob It is evenly balanced with Don Buhl are the only established Drysdale, Stan Williams and Roger Craig firing from the right side and Johnny Podres, Andy Koufax and rookie Ron Perranoski from the left side. Larry Sherry can work both ways, start and believe with Ed Roebuck in the bullpen. Pittsburgh has the same team and shortstop.

Reichler Picks Dodgers, Orioles To Cop Flags, Rates Braves Fourth

Favorite's Blessed With Top Hurlers, Strong Defenses

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers and the Baltimore Orioles, a pair of clubs loaded with young talent, are the choices here to meet in the 1961 World Series next October.

Walter Alston's Dodgers, who finished fourth last year, should repeat their 1959 National League triumph because they possess the prime pennant ingredients—strong pitching, stout defense and superb speed. They lack power but they are blessed with sufficient strength to two-platoon without suffering any noticeable dip in quality.

Prime Importance

Paul Richards' Orioles also have the speed, defense and pitching—especially pitching. Always, a prime factor, pitching takes on added importance in the American League this season because of the additional two teams which have caused an expansion of the schedule from 154 to 162 games.

Baltimore's front liners, aside from pitching, doesn't stack up with New York's starting array but the Orioles have, for the first time, a stronger bench and vastly superior second line pitching than the Yankees. The Orioles are hungry and the experience last year when they battled the Yankees right down to the wire, should be of immense help.

One-Two Punch

The Dodgers don't own a one-two punch to compare with Milwaukee's combination of Henry Aaron and Eddie Mathews, or San Francisco's Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda, or St. Louis' Stan Musial and Ken Boyer, or even Pittsburgh's Bob Skinner and Roberto Clemente. Their advantage over the others lies in their almost equal distribution of talent.

While the other contenders don't have a suitable replacement if one of their big guns falter or be sidelined by an injury, the Dodgers can replace a Gil Hodges with a Frank Howard, a Duke Snider with a Norm Larker, a Willie Davis with a Don Demeter, a Tommy Davis with a Jim Gilliam or a Maury Wills with a Charley Smith, without noticeably affecting their strength.

Cardinals Third

The defending champion Pirates and Yankees should finish second, with the Cardinals and Chicago White Sox third and Milwaukee and Cleveland fourth.

This appears to be the shape of things to come in each league: National League—1. Los Angeles, 2. Pittsburgh, 3. St. Louis, 4. Milwaukee, 5. San Francisco, 6. Cincinnati, 7. Philadelphia, 8. Chicago.

American League—1. Baltimore, 2. New York, 3. Chicago, 4. Cleveland, 5. Minnesota, 6. Detroit, 7. Boston, 8. Kansas City, 9. Los Angeles, 10. Washington.

Oriole Hurling

Baltimore's pitching, best in the American League last year, may be even stronger because of the experience gained by youngsters Chuck Estrada, Milt Pappas, Jack Fisher and Steve Barber. Also, Jerry Walker, a disappointment last year, looks like he's ready to pick up where he left off in 1959, when he was named to the All-Star team. The staff is complemented by veterans Hoyt Wilhelm, Hal Brown and

Doesn't Want Utility Role

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers' surplus talent sat during exhibition games was crowded. The late-inning replacements were doing a good job keeping Chuck Cottier and his 167 pounds suspended in mid-air.

"This little fellow looks so young that he gets into the movie at half price," one of them said. Baby-faced Cottier just smiled and the muscle men lowered him gently behind the chicken wire that separates the paying guests from the free loaders in monkey suits.

But mention the fact that Manager Bob Scheffing had suggested Cottier as his utility man and that Jake Wood was the second baseman, and Cottier sounded off with a sharp barrage.

Wood is the 23-year-old player from Elizabeth, N.J., who can do everything Cottier says he can't do. Wood made 105 double plays despite 34 errors at Denver last year. He batted .305 with 12 homers and 76 runs batted in despite 126 strikeouts.

"Wood has got to beat me out," Cottier began as he lost his seat but retained his desire for an interview. "What he did at Detroit doesn't count in the big leagues. I don't think he can make the double play."

"I don't want any of this utility business. I'm going to be the regular second baseman."

If Cottier doesn't play second, he may wind up at short, replacing the light hitting Latin, Chico Fernandez. Cottier, 25, has youth and a flaming spirit going for him.

It was his desire to play that drew Scheffing's attention to the spunky Billy Martin-type lad from Hollydale, Calif., by way of Delta, Colo. Both were at Milwaukee last year, Scheffing as a coach and Cottier as a .227-hitting second baseman in 95 games. But while Red Schoendienst rode the bench, Cottier made all the plays. Scheffing gladly took Cottier with Bill Bruton and two others in the deal which sent Frank Bolling, Detroit second baseman for six years, off to Wisconsin.

Tabbed for Stardom

Two springs ago, Cottier was tabbed for stardom by Fred Haney. Last spring Charlie Dressen took up the chant. He even gave little Chuck a heavier bat and said "don't swing for home runs." "With the heavy bat," says Cottier, "the pitchers threw me fast balls inside, and I couldn't put wood on it. I went to a lighter bat and on the last road trip I must have hit .420. Ask Charlie Dressen."

"Did he say that?" Dressen said with a big smile when hunted down.

A check showed the Braves' last road trip included five games and that Cottier had three singles for 19 trips. He almost hit his weight. The figure was .158, not .420.

A Strong Bat

"I knew Milwaukee would trade Cottier," says Red Schoendienst. "They built him up so strongly. I know one thing; the Braves didn't lose the pennant at second base."

It may be months before Detroit's second base problem solves itself.

Wood swings a strong bat when he hits the ball, has speed and makes the DP. His biggest backer during spring training was Charlie Metro, his Denver manager. Said Metro:

"He's ready. He's fascinating to watch, especially when he runs the bases. He stole 34 bases for our pennant winner (American Association) and scored from first base on singles no less than four times."

Wood worked in a cookie factory last winter. Naturally, the Tigers rate this lean 23-year-old 163-pounder as some cookie. But Cottier says he'll take over second base when the cookie crumbles.

Cardinal Cushing Describes Welch as 'Capable, Fearless'

NORTH EASTON, Mass. (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston says Robert Welch Jr., founder and leader of the controversial John Birch Society, is a "very capable, fearless man who has made sacrifices to fight communism."

Nevertheless, anyone who charges former President Eisenhower with communist leanings is "speaking absurdities," the cardinal said in a speech Wednesday.

"Anyone who is fighting communism today on a top level and who knows the methods and teaching of communism—that man is going to suffer," the Boston prelate said in an address to business and professional men Wednesday night.

Demands recently have been made in Congress for an investigation of Welch and the society he heads, since disclosure of Welch letters in which he refers to former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower as tools of communism.

Charity Solicitors Don't Change Tactics

BY THOMAS COLLINS

This woman may be a neighbor of yours. If so, you ought to be ashamed of yourself.

If not, you might revise your own retirement planning by listening to the story she has to tell about a nice married couple who retired and remained in their old community.

"Through our working years," she says, "we built a small summer cottage not far from our home. When my husband retired, we decided that we would sell our home, live in the cottage during the summer, then rent a cottage in the south for the cold months. Everybody immediately said it would be a mistake at our age to move away from old friends.

One Problem

"So we remained where we were. And in many ways we are quite happy. We have our friends, our freedom, and our hobbies. But we have one problem and I think we can only solve it by moving away and making a new life among strangers.

"The problem is financial. Our retirement income is fixed and small. We can spend little money for anything except necessities. Yet, this community, where we chose to stay, is not the least bit considerate of that fact.

"The demands of prices and taxes keep going up. But the cost of being good neighbors keeps going up too. We had thought that after retirement we would give a dollar to causes for which we formerly gave five, and $2 to home. But the neighborly organizations — who the summer, then rent a cottage in the south for the cold months. Everybody immediately said it would be a mistake at our age to move away from old friends.

It's Embarrassing

"It is acutely embarrassing to tell a charity solicitor at the door that you must now reduce your $5 to one because you are retired. My husband has quietly dropped out of a golf club he belonged to for 10 years since there are no bargain rates for pensioners. I have had to develop convenient headaches to avoid women's organizations to which I belong because the social affairs of these groups plus their special assessments for pet charities are beyond our financial grasp.

"The number of solicitations which come to nice retired people who stay on in their nice communities — all for good causes of course — is unbelievable. What can you do about them except to say 'I'm sorry' at the front door and blush.

Get Away

"You can move away to live among strangers who didn't know you when you could do better and therefore don't expect more than one dollar. That is what my husband and I have finally decided to do.

"For we know as almost everybody does, that any embarrassment in these matters is not confined to you and the neighbor knocking at the front door. All fund-begging, whether for the church, the club, the Community Chest, or Buggy-Whip Park, is now made public. Everybody knows how much you give. . . .

This woman's plight is not unusual for those who live in the better communities of America. Call it false pride or misplaced values or whatever you choose.

Collins

Intense Title Good For Political Column

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—(AP)—Senora Maria Lagos of Santiago, Chile, whose husband does research work at the University of North Carolina under a Ford Foundation grant, writes a regular column for a hometown newspaper. Senor Lagos' column "AGLE" is carried by LaNacion, Chile's oldest newspaper, and deals with international affairs and politics in the United States.

She says "AGLE" has no meaning in any language and adds: "It is a good name for a political column."

It is still embarrassing and society allows no fitting way to escape from it.

If you are one who can be embarrassed, perhaps it is just as well for you to move. But after retirement it doesn't actually matter if you can afford a dollar instead of five.

You can tell the solicitor and anybody else asking you for money to go play hopscotch and leave you be. What would you really lose?

Malignancy of Polyps May Depend on Location

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What are polyps? Can they cause cancer? Must surgery be performed? Can treatment be had? — Mrs. M. D."

Polyps are growths that occur on a mucous membrane—the moist lining of nose, throat, stomach, bladder, bowel, etc.

It is common for polyps to be shaped, approximately, like a mushroom, to the extent that they rise on a narrow stem with a bump or globe at the top.

Since polyps appear on a mucous membrane, they may occur on the larynx or in the nasal passages (sometimes contributing to sinus trouble.)

It so happens that the location seems to have a distinct bearing on whether polyps can become malignant — that is, cancerous. Without giving an elaborate list, I can't offer any rule as to which are likely to be cancerous and which are not. But for a general idea, I would say that bowel or rectal polyps (with certain qualifications) should be removed promptly to be safe. I would be distrustful of polyps in the stomach. I would not be alarmed over polyps in the nose from that standpoint, but would consider it the right thing to do to remove them if they are causing trouble in breathing or proper sinus drainage. In short, polyps are an abnormal growth and eventually they will create trouble of one sort or another.

In many cases a person can live with polyps for an extended time and then will want them removed because they are troublesome. In other cases, depending on location and perhaps the result of other tests, polyps perhaps should be removed, not because they are a nuisance but because there are signs that their location may in time lead to serious problems.

Possible Consequences

In the nose polyps may in time cause congestion, discharge or bleeding; in the larynx, hoarseness; in the bladder, bleeding infection and perhaps something worse; in the bowel, bleeding, and, in a significant percentage of cases, cancerous changes.

I admit that balancing the various factors which I have mentioned can become complicated and complex. But that's why we have doctors — to balance off the various factors of risk or harmlessness and decide when to "wait and see" and when to remove polyps before they have time to copocci any really dangerous conditions.

You know (as I've written before in this column) that, for example, moles aren't dangerous because they are moles. But if they begin to change size or color or are subject to constant irritation, they ought to be removed. In other cases, don't worry, because moles are so common. It's just about the same, except for percentages, with many polyps.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you discuss the after-effects of a hysterectomy? Is it to be expected not to feel well?—S.N."

The operation itself is not followed by any particular after-effects. "Hot flashes," the result of menopause (or removal of ovaries) in some instances, may occur and can be relieved by appropriate hormone treatment.

"Dear Dr. Molner: About six weeks ago my hair started to come out quite badly. What can be done about it? I am 78.

—Mrs. M. P."

Such hair loss is not unusual in older women. Most likely it is related to some glandular circumstance. There may be nutritional deficiencies which can be easily corrected. On some occasions an emotional upset can be the cause.

Molner

GOP Faces Problem in Party Plans

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Republican Party reports that it has been getting a good response for funds to keep it in business but it now faces another problem.

Democratic Dist. Atty. William D. Byrne notified the GOP state organization Wednesday that it can not bring liquor into the Dane County fairgrounds when it stages a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner next Monday.

The Republicans had been counting on the dinner to help them raise funds and had advertised it as an affair that included food and drinks.

The Dane County fairgrounds committee had approved a motion to allow the GOP to serve beer and cocktails at the dinner. Byrne said, however, the committee can not grant such authority because a county ordinance specifically prohibits carrying alcoholic beverages into the fairgrounds.

tional deficiencies which can be easily corrected. On some occasions an emotional upset can be the cause.

Juries on Capital Punishment

Three different murder trials in three states have drawn nation-wide publicity. In all the cases the accused were convicted but the death penalty, in operation in the states, was not imposed.

After two hung juries, Dr. Bernard Finch and Carol Tregoff were found guilty of conspiracy to murder, a capital offense in California. The doctor also was convicted of first degree murder and Miss Tregoff of second degree. But, after hours of more argument and deliberation, the jury could not decide upon the gas chamber for either one.

In Illinois, Chester Weger was convicted of murdering one of the three women found brutally beaten to death in Starved Rock State Park a year ago. The crime apparently was not premeditated but was of a particularly vicious nature. Weger was given a life sentence rather than the electric chair.

And in Florida, Judge Joseph Peel was convicted of having planned and ordered the drowning murders of Judge Chillingworth and his wife to avoid exposure of racket involvement. The jury in this case recommended mercy which saved Peel from the chair.

In none of the cases were there any really valid extenuating circumstances.

Suffrage Comes to the District of Columbia

Residents of the District of Columbia now have the right to vote for president and vice president. John L. Moore, General Services administrator, has certified the ratification of the 23rd Amendment to the United States Constitution by 39 states which is one more than was needed.

The people of the district have not had the right to vote since the district was organized in 1800. Before that time those living in the area voted as residents of either Maryland or Virginia. Now it should be noted that they may vote only for the chief executive and the vice president. They have not yet won the right to self-government. They may be on the way to better things, however, since the 39 states required only 286 days for ratification of this amendment. The real difficulty was in getting the proposals submitted to the people by Congress. And that probably will be the difficulty with any future proposals to extend the suffrage to other matters. Such bills were often held up in committees because the district has a heavy and growing Negro population and many of the southern senators and representatives were opposed to extending suffrage.

Eleven southern states took no action on this amendment. The only delay in the northern and border states came in a sort of waiting contest between Kansas and Ohio. Kansas is celebrating its 100th anniversary as a state this year and want-

Dr. Finch admitted shooting his wife but said it was an accident. The jury must have believed there was a plot between Finch and his mistress, Miss Tregoff, to render the convictions. Weger robbed and tied the three women and then confessed that he killed them when one broke free and hit him with a pair of binoculars. He was convicted of first degree murder. Peel, if guilty as decided by the jury, was as unprincipled a bounder as could be found in Mickey Spillane's shockers. The Chillingworth bodies never were found but two men confessed to the actual killings and the jury must have believed the evidence as presented.

Why then were there recommendations for mercy and sentences to prison rather than the capital punishment which the laws of all three states uphold? It would seem that all three juries, contrary to the exact demands of the law, reacted emotionally to the death sentence. This is not judicial. This is not even a true interpretation of the laws as they were written. But it reflects, we suggest, the growing doubt of the American public as to the wisdom or morality of the death sentence in the United States. The juries may be just a little bit ahead of the state legislatures in their reflection of popular opinion.

ed the honor of being the 38th and deciding state to support the amendment. Ohio wanted the same honor and thus the two states sat there waiting it out. In the meantime New Hampshire became the 37th state to ratify and then there was a race between Kansas and Ohio for the 38th place with Kansas winning by several hours.

Now legislation is needed to provide the election machinery for 1964. Both Sen. Bible, who is chairman of the Senate District Committee and Rep. McMillan of the House District Committee have promised to expedite this legislation so there should be no great difficulty ahead. The legislation proposed would provide the 21-year-old minimum age for voting and a one year residency in the district. Provisions for registration, absentee balloting, the position of the names on the ballots, the use of voting machines and all such requirements will need to be written into the new law.

Here is a case where Congressional committees have been sitting on legislation which the people were ready to approve for 160 years. Plans now are being made to provide for self-government in the district and this will be fought bitterly by many southern legislators who do not relish the idea of living in a city with a government dominated by Negroes. Nevertheless it is unlikely that they will be able to sit on this proposal for another hundred years.

New World Geography

Since the last guns were silenced in World War II, some 40 new "nations" around the world have established themselves more or less convincingly and securely.

To the pundits who deal so solemnly with international polity, this is a significant fact indeed — although some of us may wonder at the ease with which tribesmen in distant places establish "government" and "nationalities." For the moment we are more concerned about what this portentous statistic means for the boys and girls in the schoolrooms of the western world, who are being required to study geography lessons that are altogether more difficult and complex than those known by most of their parents and their grandparents.

Remember when Africa was merely a colored blob in the textbook, with pink for the British holdings, and green for the French, and some off-color for the Belgian and Portuguese and other colonial empires? Remember when the map of Asia was carved into huge sections, with the easy symbols of the colonial hegemony again making the memorizing task a simple one? Perhaps there are a few old-timers around who remember that there were also a few German colonies around the world, with a color of their own.

While the children face more challenging classroom assignments in geography (pardon, teacher calls it "social studies" today) they may draw some consolation from the fact that their elders as citizens also face more perplexing duties.

As someone observed recently, some of these new "nations" are in decidedly shaky position and some of their leaders are qualifying for national offices about as casually as we apply for driver's licenses. Some of them have shown about as much sobriety in managing their "national" affairs as some of our more irresponsible motorists. The child frowning over his schoolroom atlas, perhaps, is not so far removed from his parent confounded by the international news dispatches of today.

Both Sides Preparing for Crisis

BY ALFRED DUNNING

One of the most unusual gestures of Anglo-American friendship took place dramatically a little over 100 years ago when the United States presented to Queen Victoria a fully-rigged British man-of-war in perfect condition. This was the H.M.S. Resolute, and the story of how she came into American hands is a curious one.

Behind the story of Jackie Kennedy's find of a historic desk in the White House basement is another story: the incredible tale of the ship Resolute from whose timbers the desk was made. Crewless, rudderless, abandoned to the Arctic ice, she drifted 1,100 miles, and wound up as seaworthy as ever. Alfred Dunning, who wrote the story originally for Wheeler's Review, London, tells the tale.

Its origins lay in the famous but ill-starred Arctic expedition that sailed from Britain in May 1845 under the command of Sir John Franklin to discover "the best prospect of accomplishing the (northwest) passage to the Pacific."

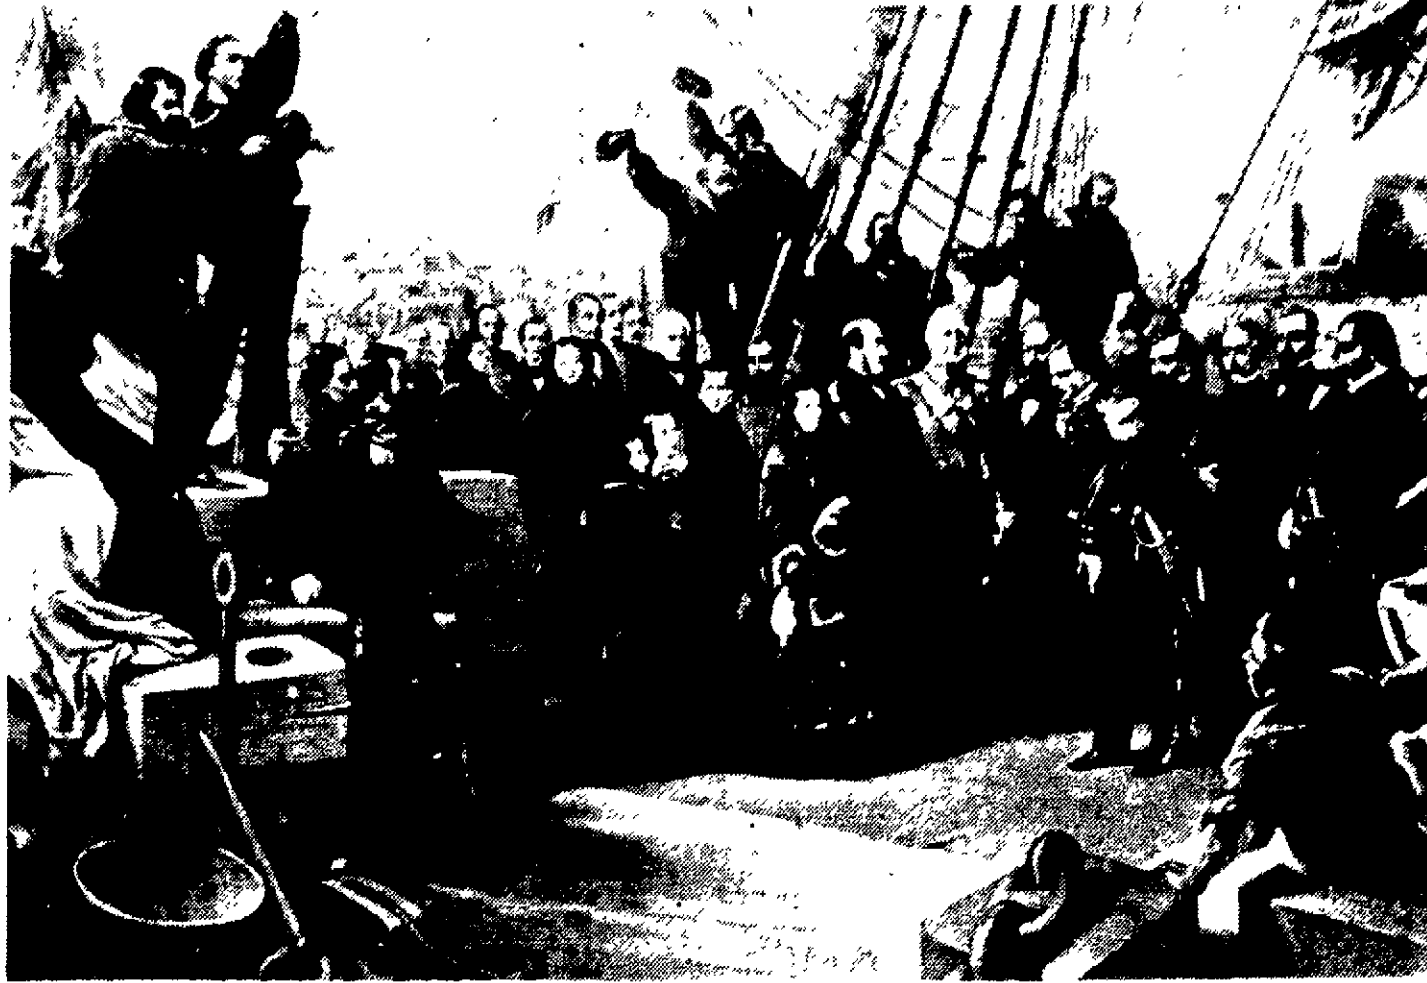

By July the two ships of the expedition, the Erebus and the Terror, had reached the entrance to Lancaster Sound in the Arctic and were observed by a whaler to enter it. No one of the over 100-man expedition ever was seen again, and 14 years were to pass before their tragedy off King Williams Island became known.

Search Started

But if the solution to this greatest of Arctic mysteries was long delayed, expeditions in search of it were not. From both sides of the Atlantic, squadrons went north in search of Franklin. And even though they failed in their main purpose, the mapping of vast areas of hitherto unknown territory made these searches immensely valuable.

One of the busiest searches was conducted in 1850-51, when ten vessels — two of them American — were sent out. But by 1852 the British government was reaching the end of its willingness to underwrite further rescue operations. One last effort

Capt. Henry Harstein, U. S. N. (bowing at right), presents the Resolute to Queen Victoria. Two years after she had been abandoned in the Arctic ice, the warship, refurbished at U. S. expense, rejoined the Royal Navy. Her return to England was a tribute to Anglo-American amity.

was decided upon. Five ships, the Assistance, the Pioneer, the Resolute, the Intrepid, and the North Star, went out. The only weakness of the expedition lay in the person of the commander-in-chief, Sir Edward Belcher.

For a time the expedition fared well enough. At the western end of Lancaster Sound, Belcher took the Assistance and the Pioneer northward to search for Franklin in the Wellington Channel; the Resolute and the Intrepid sailed farther west to Melville Island, where they wintered. The North Star remained at Beechey Island as a depot ship. Thereafter followed an incredible series of mischances and blunders.

Ordered to Leave

During their second winter, when the two Melville Island ships were "snugged down" in the ice to await spring, their captains, to their disgust, were ordered by Belcher to abandon ship and proceed, over hundreds of miles of ice, to the depot ship.

Unwillingly they did so, knowing that their ice-locked vessels were likely to be perfectly seaworthy when the thaw set in. And their distrust of Belcher's leadership increased when they found Sir Edward had abandoned his two ships, trapped in the ice of Wellington Channel. So the expedition returned to England in the North Star and two other transports dispatched to them.

For Sir Edward, a court-martial was waiting, and he never again was commissioned in naval service.

On Sept. 10, 1855, the American whaling vessel George Henry began to overtake a warship off Cape Mercy in Davis Strait whose crew made no reply to the whaler's signals. The ship was listing badly. Boarding her by right of salvage, the captain found himself owner of the derelict — but otherwise sound — Resolute!

She had made a fantastic passage in the 16 months since she had been abandoned. Not only had she survived the terrible grip of the Arctic ice, but with the breakup of the pack had drifted through Barrow Strait, Lancaster Sound, Baffin Bay, and down Davis Strait — well over 1,000 miles. And here she was, thickly encrusted with ice on her port side, but otherwise as seaworthy as the day she left the shipwright's yard.

Last Resting Place

Without proper navigating instruments or charts and driven by storms as far south as Bermuda, the captain brought his prize into New London, Conn., on Christmas Eve, 1855.

But even a century ago, salvaging a warship owned by a foreign power was not a simple transaction. So Congress authorized a bill to purchase the Resolute and return it to England.

The work of refitting the vessel, with a Congressional appropriation of $40,000, was begun at once, and the old warship, new-found in more senses than one, sailed for Coves on the Isle of Wight.

Her arrival was a royal occasion. Queen Victoria, the Prince Consort, the Prince of Wales, and other members of the royal family went aboard, and were delighted to find that even the individual effects of the Resolute's original officers were intact.

On Dec. 30, 1856, the formal handing-over of the Resolute Stars and Stripes were lowered from the ship. A 21-gun salute was fired, and a chapter of history seemed to have been closed.

But it was not quite the end. The sturdy timbers of the Resolute have not perished. The ship itself, in the name of economy, was dismantled by the Admiralty and reduced to a hulk. But from her teak timbers a desk was made, and presented to the President of the United States by the Queen of England. There in the White House the last remains of the Resolute have found a home.

Support Those Who Devise Plan

From The Wisconsin Journal Of Education

Very frequently during the Joint Finance Committee hearings of the Wisconsin Legislature a question is asked by a member of the committee: "Where are we going to get the money?" It is a good question, but not an impossible one to answer. In organized society government is necessary, and, therefore, is entitled to a portion of the national income for the performance of those services demanded by the citizens.

It is obvious that the great bulk of the needed revenue to meet the state's obligations will have to come from either an increase of the income tax or the levying of a sales tax.

If we make no recommendation as to the type of a tax to be levied, then we should accept the plan adopted by the legislature and the governor without question. Let's not condemn but rather support legislators who devise a plan to raise the necessary revenue to meet our increasing obligations to education and other public services. We can't afford not to.

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — An enduring mystery about Wisconsin politics is the failure of the city interest in the state legislature to gain influence and strength in proportion to the rapid and continuing urbanization of the state.

The urbanization of Wisconsin has been evident to all except the wilfully blind for the last two decades. The pace was accelerated during the last ten years, as the most recent federal census reports have dramatically shown. Something like 7 out of 10 of the inhabitants of Wisconsin now live in urban localities, which are defined as those of a population of 2,500 or more.

Nor does anyone doubt that the trend will continue. In another decade the ratio may be as high as 80 per cent, and possibly higher. This urbanization does not mean that the new urbanites are living in "cities", but most of them do. Indeed, the fact that some of them are not city residents, but have settled in suburbs in ever increasing numbers, may be at the heart of the cities' problem in protecting their health and integrity as municipal corporations.

ILLUSTRATION
The fight about school services and annexation in this legislature and in the predecessor 1959 legislature illustrates almost perfectly.

Two years ago the cities were badly defeated in what they regarded as one of the most vital issues of the year when the legislature decided that all unincorporated territory in the state should be attached to an operating high school district before July 1, 1962.

The cities fought that measure not on educational grounds, but on the grounds that it would erect an impassable barrier to future annexations of area to cities. If suburban communities could be hooked onto city school systems, they would be enabled to get the most important service of municipal government at a bargain counter price, and thus would forever be discouraged from full annexation, the cities protested. The danger was especially acute in those cities that are ringed with residential suburbs, and who would thus be locked in perpetuity within their present legal boundaries, whatever the future might bring in population or industrial trends.

It is that 1959 statute that was the motivation for the bold and perhaps excessively ambitious — literally considered — annexation proposals before the legislature today as drafted by the cities. The cities want the right to take any unincorporated territory they believe they need, with the consent only of the state planning director required.

Diplomats May Yet Get to the Lemonade Stage

From The Cincinnati Enquirer

The lovely lemon may yet emerge as the official symbol of U.S. diplomacy. It will, at any rate, if Rep. H. R. Gross (R. Iowa) has his way. He suggested in the House the other day that U.S. diplomats overseas serve lemonade instead of martinis and whisky at official functions — as a means of reducing the high cost of diplomatic entertainment.

Gross disclosed that the suggestion had come originally from George V. Allen, former head of the U.S. Information Agency and a veteran of the U. S. Foreign Service.

Not long after Gross' disclosure, the Iowa lawmaker received a case of lemons from his colleague, Rep. Charles M. Teague (R. Calif.), and promptly forwarded them to Mr. Allen. By now, if the Allen plan is being carried out, the lemons have probably taken their place in one of the juiciest diplomatic stores of the year.

Hollywood Changes Kennedy War Story

From The Atlanta Journal

Hollywood has announced it will make a movie of President Kennedy's heroic exploit as a PT boat commander in the South Pacific.

Those who feel the prestige of the presidency is being commercialized may take heart as the movie-makers usually make enough changes to render the original situation unrecognizable.

For one thing, they're going to have to make the ship at least a destroyer instead of a PT to accommodate all the old salts who claim they were on it.

BACKGROUND
But it is not fair to consider this annexation bill on its literal terms. It is in fact a retaliatory measure, a defense mechanism, desperately devised to counteract the pick and choose annexation program the legislature enacted two years before.

The prospects for the cities' defensive counterstroke are not good. A fair bet is that the city annexation bill will die, in part because there is no politician who is very much concerned about urban government issues, as such, who has any real punch in this legislature.

Another reason lies in the equivocal, to put a mild word on it, position of the powerful school lobby—the state department of public instruction, the school boards, the school administrators, the school teachers and the rest who comprise one of the most potent forces on the legislative sidelines.

It was the school lobby that ignored the protests of the cities two years ago, and said the over-riding issue was the right of children to attend good schools, wherever they live. Now the children have that right guaranteed by law. The new issue is avoiding the degeneration of central cities through artificial rings of suburbs that want the right to select those parts of the city budgets they will pay for. The school lobby that is otherwise so noisy is silent.

Viet Nam Election Criticized

President Sure to Win Against Little Real Opposition

By JOHN GRIFFIN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam is ending its presidential election campaign against a backdrop of rising Communist terrorist activity.

Some Vietnamese hail Sunday's election as an exercise and training project in democracy. Opponents say that by Western standards, it is a dangerous farce. It is no contest.

President Ngo Dinh Diem, 60, is favored to poll a wide majority of the votes against two almost unknown opponents—Nguyen Dinh Quat, 43, a wealthy Saigon businessman, and Ho Nhat Tan, 74, a doctor of Chinese medicine.

Taste of Democracy
Diem supporters say the important thing is that South Viet Nam's 14 million people are getting a taste of the democratic process.

The president has toured the countryside, smiling and shaking hands. He and other candidates have appeared at public rallies and faced questioning.

Criticism of the president by the other candidates has been unexpectedly strong. Such normally taboo subjects as the role of the president's family have been broached with gusto. Three of his brothers hold influential positions.

All this is cited as an example of democracy in action, admittedly limited and hampered by the fact the government is also under open and armed attack by a powerful Communist movement.

'Make it Real One'
Diem backers say that, considering the situation, it would be unfair to expect more.

But some opponents of the president take a different view.

One puts it this way: "If you go to the trouble of having an election campaign, you should make it a real one. The people are getting a taste of democracy, all right—a bad taste."

The president has the base government machinery behind him. In the provinces his opponents are little known and have not campaigned to any extent.

Reliable observers who have followed the campaign say that the rallies are usually packed with supporters for the administration and with hecklers for the opposition.

Foreign observers, analyzing the rigidly controlled local press, say the campaign against the two opposition parties has been vicious and the tone of their charges against the government is not accurately presented.

No Real Opposition

One Diem critic, not involved in the campaign says: "The people know about this, especially the more intelligent ones. What is even more frustrating is that the opposition candidates are really nothing. No worthy opposition has been allowed to develop. After the election we are back where we started, only more so."

But though he will return to another five-year term, Diem still faces a strong, anti-Communist opposition that even extends into the military, as a revolt last November showed.

Charging government corruption and undue influence in government by Diem's relatives, insurgent paratroopers staged an uprising in Saigon that was stamped out after two days of fighting.

UW Professor To Begin Survey Of Fox Cities

MENASHA—Dr. T. F. Thompson, political science professor at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center, will begin his inventory of municipal governments in the Fox Cities area next week.

His project, part of a Ford Foundation and university Bureau of Government study grant, will review the City of Menasha and its services.

Dr. Thompson is on a five-year study grant in the Fox Cities area. His reports will be available to the governmental units.

Home Building in the Town of Grand Chute is continuing at a fast pace, and during the first quarter of this year more than doubled the 1960 mark for the same three-month period. Not all of the building is in platted subdivisions. This aerial view shows some of the home sites outside of formal subdivisions. There is extensive building along Lyndale Drive, between Wisconsin Avenue and Capitol Drive.

Abundance of Lots Noted

Appleton Engineering Section Asks Slow-Down in Annexations So New Additions Can Be Served

BY REINY WESSING
Post-Crescent Building Editor

Anyone who wants to build a home in or near Appleton will find an abundance of available lots in 41 newly developing areas:

There is still a scattering of lots in older sections of the city and in the first subdivisions annexed to the city.

Since 1950 slightly more than 2,000 acres have been brought into the corporate limits, some of which are not completely developed.

Director of Public Works Edwin Duszynski has asked the board of public works several times to go slow in annexing more new territory, so he can catch up with work in recent additions.

"Once we got water, sewer and streets in all these we'll have lots running out of our ears," he commented.

There are 24 areas under development within the city limits. Outside the city are another 16, some of which are several miles from Appleton's present boundaries.

Charging government corruption and undue influence in government by Diem's relatives, insurgent paratroopers staged an uprising in Saigon that was stamped out after two days of fighting.

Areas Inside City

ship company, said in London the Dara carried passengers and cargo from Bombay to many Persian Gulf ports.

"Some Europeans might be aboard the ship in the limited first class accommodations," he said. "But most of those on board would be what used to be known as deck passengers."

Among Survivors

The ship captain, C. Elson, was among the survivors, officials said. Elson and 18 other officers aboard the Dara are European.

At last report, the Dara was still afloat and Elson was preparing to reboard her. A company spokesman said:

"The picture is still confused, but it now appears that the Dara was in collision last night with a Meade ship which dragged its anchor in and Oneida Street, and Florida Avenue and Capitol Drive. The city is being asked to annex about 80 acres, as yet unnamed, west of Meade Street and north of Northland Avenue.

Farther north are Edgewood subdivision, on Ballard Road about 2 miles north of the city, and the Schmidt Plat, near Capitol Drive and the new U. S. 41.

There is considerable home building on Capitol Drive West of the city, but the land is not platted. Property is sold by what is called a "meets-and-bounds" description.

Development south of the city is in the Town of Menasha, Winnebago County, and the Town of Harrison, Calumet County. There are about 40 plats in the Town of Menasha. Appleton is being asked to annex the 80-acre Kassike Plat in Calumet County, about three-fourths of a mile south of Calumet Street, between Kernan Avenue and Carpenter Street extended.

Three hundred survivors will be landed at Dubai today, the company spokesman said, and another 150 are reported aboard the tanker British Energy en route to Bahrain.

Worst Storm
The storm the Dara encountered was the worst to hit the Persian Gulf in years. Giant hailstones smashed windows in some ships.

British Admiralty officials said at least three royal frigates were conducting maneuvers in the area near the Dara and had been ordered to help in the rescue work.

First reports reaching Bahrain said the Dara had been unable to get its lifeboats away, but this was unconfirmed.

said Charles Jackson, Capt. Jackson's brother, in Richwood.

The family of Singleton was overjoyed when informed he had survived.

"Oh, thank God," said Mrs. Harvey Baker, Singleton's sister. The Singleton family learned Singleton was one of the survivors from his wife, Gloria, 23, of El Paso, Tex., who telephoned to Havre de Grace.

"She called and said she didn't know the extent of his injuries. All she knew was that he was in the hospital," said Mrs. Baker.

The five remaining crewmen were Capt. Ray C. Obel, 28, Logan, Ohio copilot; Lt. Glenn V. Bair, 24, Kemmerer, Wyo., electronics warfare officer; Capt. Stephen Carter, 29, East Hartford, Conn., navigator - bombardier; Staff Sgt. Manuel L. Mieras, 23, Flagstaff, Ariz., crew chief, and Capt. Peter J. Gineris, 30, Albuquerque, navigator.

Ironically, Van Scyoc, a veteran Air Force pilot who had logged 1,900 hours in jets, was safety officer for the New Mexico Air Guard. He had prepared several manuals on the safe handling of weapons, including the Sidewinder.

Anti-Cancer Drug Used for Two Types

'Velban' Checks Hodgkin's Disease,
Another Rare Type; No Proof of Cure

Eli Lilly & Co. has introduced a new anti-cancer drug called Velban. The drug, which has been tested in clinics for two years, has been released for treatment of only two kinds of cancer, Hodgkin's disease and a rare type called choriocarcinoma.

Eli Lilly researchers said the drug has been used to treat 300 patients having a variety of malignant diseases, but the evaluation of results in other cancers has not been completed. Clinical studies of the drug are being expanded, the company said in Indianapolis.

Eli Lilly reported that Velban treatments for Hodgkin's disease led to "significant tumor shrinkage and improvement in general physical condition" in 31 of 34 patients. Twenty-six of these had failed to respond to other methods of treatment.

Furthermore, Eli Lilly reported, 23 patients placed on maintenance doses of Velban have continued their improvement without relapse for periods ranging from several months to more than a year.

"There is no evidence," the company said, "that in any instance Velban has cured Hodgkin's disease or any other form of human cancer." A cure is not proclaimed unless the patient is free of all signs of the cancer for a period of five years.

As with all available anti-cancer drugs, the company said, Velban is capable of producing a number of serious side effects. Company researchers have warned doctors that Velban tends to lower the white blood cell count.

More than 120 drugs and chemicals have been found in the last five years which have some effect against cancer. The drugs are usually effective in only a few kinds of cancer and in only a few patients. Where drugs have appeared to suppress a tumor, the effect has been only temporary. Often, after weeks or months, the cancer cells develop a resistance or immunity to a drug and the cancer returns. Most anti-cancer drugs are highly poisonous.

In the instance of the rare cancer, choriocarcinoma, Eli Lilly said Velban produced anti-tumor effects in seven of 10 patients. In four of the patients the cancer was suppressed for several months to more than a year. This is the second drug to show a high degree of effectiveness against this type of cancer. Several women treated with Methotrexate, a drug produced by Lederle Laboratories division of American Cyanamid Co., have been free of this form of cancer for two to four years.

Hodgkin's disease, which afflicts 10,000 to 15,000 Americans, is a cancer of the lymph glands, liver and spleen. Only 700 cases of choriocarcinoma, a tumor of a membrane found in the placenta, ovaries and testes, are known to exist in this country. They represent a minute percentage of total cancer cases.

Packers Will Hike Stadium Seating Capacity to 38,613

Construction of 6,200 New Seats to Start in April

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Seating capacity of City stadium will be increased to 38,613 with the addition of 6,200 seats, it was announced today by Vince Lombardi, general manager and coach of the Packers. The seats will be built by Green Bay Packers, Inc., under its agreement with the city of Green Bay. Construction will start early in April and will be finished in time for the Bishop's Charities game against the New York Giants Labor Day.

Joe Brown Takes Unanimous Win In Non-Title Bout

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Joe Brown, the lightweight champion, took a unanimous decision Tuesday night over Joey Parks of Omaha in a 10-round non-title bout. Both Brown and Parks weighed in at 138. Parks controlled the fight in the early rounds with a hard left and staggered the champion in one round. But he tired badly in the later rounds and Brown's smooth boxing made the difference. The bout was a tuneup for Brown's April 18 title defense against Dave Charnley of London.

The contractor is George M. Hougard and Son, Inc., who built the stadium in 1957.

3,100 on Each Side

The addition will be an extension of the east and west stands to the south with about 3,100 seats on each side.

In addition, a total of 263 bleacher seats will be moved behind the children's section in the northeast corner of the stadium, bringing to 1,101 the number of children's seats.

The old capacity was 32,150 and with the two new additions (6,200 and 263), the stadium will have seats for 38,613 customers.

With the addition, Green Bay's stadium no longer will be the smallest in the National Football League. Busch Stadium, home of the St. Louis Cardinals; Griffith Stadium in Washington, where the Redskins play; and Forbes Field in Pittsburgh, home of the Steelers, each have around 35,000 seats.

The Packer corporation, of which Dominic Olejniczak is president, voted recently to build the seats following steady requests for season tickets from new buyers.

Lombardi estimated that more than 2,000 new season ticket orders already have been received in the Packer ticket office.

The Packers sold 31,000 season tickets—just short of the old capacity of 32,413—for the four games at City stadium in 1960.

"Every indication shows that most of the 31,000 present holders will renew and that gives us a total of 31,000 season tickets sold before we start construction," Lombardi pointed out.

Wrigley Seeks Settlement Out of Court

Will Take Steps To Conclude Suit Against Martin

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—Owner P.K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs said Tuesday he would pursue an out-of-court settlement of the club's million dollar damage suit which stemmed from the Billy Martin-Jim Brewer fracas last summer. The suit was filed against Martin and the Cincinnati Reds.

Brewer suffered a serious facial injury around his right eye from a punch thrown by Martin, then playing with Cincinnati. Martin, since has joined the Milwaukee Braves.

A dispatch from James Enright, baseball writer for Chicago's American, quoted Wrigley: "Just as soon as I get back to Chicago, we'll take steps to settle the suit. When it was filed, we weren't sure whether Jim's career was ended as result of injuries received in the fight."

"Now that Brewer has recovered and is continuing his career, I'm going to move that the suit be settled, so it won't be hanging over his and Martin's heads during the season."

Kaukauna's Tom Frank Signs Oriole Pact, Will Pitch for Leesburg

Right-Hander, 18, Goes to Thomasville Spring Camp

Tom Frank, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Frank, Kaukauna, has signed a professional baseball contract with the Baltimore Oriole organization.

Frank, a 6 foot-2 right-handed pitcher, was signed to a Leesburg, Fla. (of the Class D Florida State League) pact Tuesday by Bob Willis, general manager of the Fox Cities Foxes. Frank reports to the Orioles' minor league camp in Thomasville, Ga., March 20. The young pitcher was awarded the contract and spring camp trip on the basis of his showing in last summer's Appleton Post-Crescent-Baltimore Oriole tryout camp at Goodland Field.

Frank pitched three years of Kaukauna High School and American Legion ball. He helped hurl the Ghosts to a Mid-Eastern Conference co-championship last season.

A 1960 graduate of Kaukauna High, Frank also competed in basketball.

Frank's highest strikeout total for a single game has been 16, and a 2-hitter (against Shawano) has been his lowest hit game. Tom, who bats right-handed, has also played the outfield. He manned left field in the 1960 Fox River Valley Legion League all-star game.

Tom is the youngest of three baseball-playing brothers. Don, a first baseman, was a member of the Kaukauna's state high school championship team of 1953. He is now in the newspaper business in Arlington, Va.

Karl, a second baseman in high school, has just returned from military service and will play for the Kaukauna Klubbbers in the Fox River Valley League.

DE PERE (AP)—St. Norbert's Green Knights will represent Wisconsin in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic Basketball Tournament at Kansas City March 13-18.

The Knights defeated Stevens Point 76-65 Tuesday night in the finals of the state NAIA qualifying meet.

Ron Brault led the victors with 25 points while Bill Kuse was high for Stevens Point with 17.

Stevens Point led at the intermission 36-35 but the Knights soon forged ahead 39-33 and held the lead the rest of the way.

St. Norbert finished its regular season with a 13-12 record while Stevens Point had a 16-6 overall mark.

Aaron Advises Wes to Ignore His Critics

Dressen Outlines Rugged Routine to Get Signee in Shape

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Henry Aaron, the Milwaukee Braves slugging outfielder had a bit of advice today for his teammate Wes Covington.

It was: "Stop paying attention to criticism."

Covington came to terms with the Braves Tuesday and was reported headed for Bradenton to start training with the National League club. He had threatened several times to sit out the season before he would accept the offer made by the Braves. The Braves countered by demanding he either sign immediately or sit it out. Covington signed.

"Wes is a funny ball player," Aaron said in discussing Covington with newsmen. "If he hits the ball real hard, he will get his confidence back and there's no telling how great a year he could have. But he's got to stop fooling around."

"His big trouble has been paying too much attention to criticism. He's got a lot of pride and when he's criticized for making mistakes, he gets down in the mouth too quick and starts fighting himself. If he continues to let the criticism affect him, he doesn't have much future left."

Need Training "Maybe he won't accept it as a challenge but Wes needs all the training he can get. For one thing, he's got to get his legs in shape — they're so heavy to start with. So he's got to put his mind to it and go all-out from the time he reports here."

Milwaukee Manager Charlie Dressen said he had outlined a rugged routine to get Covington into shape.

"I am going to take charge of him myself," Dressen said. "He already has missed a lot of training."

Schoendienst Shines in Card Intrasquad Tilt

Willie Mays, Nelson Suffer Minor Injuries

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aging Red Schoendienst, threatened with the end of a major league career spanning 16 seasons and a bout with tuberculosis, has been pronounced the "youngest-acting guy" on the St. Louis Cardinals and rewarded with a $25,000 contract.

The 38-year-old switch-hitter went at top speed in the Cardinals' intra-squad game Tuesday, cracking two singles, stealing a base, scoring one run and making a stop with the skill he used to flash as one of the National League's greatest second basemen.

Schoendienst, who had been working without a contract after getting his release from the Milwaukee Braves, accepted terms following the workout. General Manager Bing Devine said, "This is our break, not Red's. He has been most impressive and should help us tremendously."

Manager Solly Hemus concurred, calling the veteran "the youngest-looking, youngest-acting guy on the squad. My one concern was Red's health," said the Redbird skipper, "but no man could be ill and work the way he has the last two weeks."

Rash of Injuries Elsewhere, a rash of injuries broke out. The San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays escaped serious damage when a vicious foul heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson spun off his left foot in batting practice. He suffered a bruised hip.

Rocky Nelson, first baseman for the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, was hit in the face by a pitched ball, but was not seriously injured. Chicago White Sox rookie catcher Camilo Carreon split an index finger on his right hand when he was struck by a foul.

The Cards reported that ailing shortstop Julio Gotay still has blurred vision from an eye inflammation. Outfielder Al Pilarcik, obtained from Baltimore in a trade, told the Kansas City A's

The switch is on again. Patterson has been wrong 2 for 2 so son once more is almost a prohibitor. Patterson was the 5-1 betting favorite at 3 1/2 to 1 and the choice and the overwhelming pick baffled experts once more are the writers and sportscasters in plumping for Floyd's power.

and his running mate, Dennis Sweeney, is 5-11.

Coech Dan Brown's unit had a season much like that of the Zephyrs in that they won their first 10 games before losing to Beloit Catholic, 80-76. The Crusaders lost two other games — 62-59 to Waukesha Memorial and 62-61 to Prairie du Sac.

Waukesha is the only common opponent of the two teams and has beaten them both. Edgewood met Memorial twice, however, beating them in double overtime, 64-63, early in the season.

Jim Koerner is leading the St. Mary team in scoring with 231 points. Gerry "Gus" Leammrich is next in line with 209 and Bill Becker follows with 190. Bob Ru-eckl and Tony Rechner, the remaining starters, follow with 96 and 60 respectively.

Other members of the tournament team and their point totals are as follows, Kerry Young (67), Bob Stumpf (60), Dave Eckholm (47), Addie Martin (39), Phil Keller (22), Richie Konkol (19), and Tom Johnson (17).

Edgewood trounced Milwaukee St. Benedict, 63-49, Milwaukee Notre Dame, 62-59, and St. John Cathedral (Whitfish Bay), 88-56, to win the Region Seven tourney and the trip to the state meet while St. Mary dumped Appleton Xavier, 70-55, and Fond du Lac St. Mary Springs, 59-45, to gain their fifth straight Region Five championship.

Five Holdovers

Five of the teams in the tournament are returning — Aquinas, Assumption, Regis, St. Mary, and St. Catherine. Pius XI, Edgewood, and Pennington replace Waukesha Memorial, Milwaukee Notre Dame and Marinette Central Catholic from last year's field.

St. Catherine is the only unbeaten team to enter the tourney. The Angels have three men returning from the starting lineup of their runnerup team last March. The three are Rocco Calvello, 6-foot, Bob Letsch, 6-1, and Tom Schiike, 6-8, the tallest cager in the tournament.

Todd Pettit, 6-3, and Tom Cramer, 6-4, have moved up to replace Chuck Wood and Jim Paulsen, both All-Tournament choices, at the forward positions. The presence of Pettit and Cramer give the Angels more height than they had last year.

Another team with good height in the tourney is Pius XI. The Milwaukee school boasts of four frontliners in Ray Mussler, 6-2, Gary Woysik, 6-2, Pat Reardon, 6-5, and Terry Welter, 6-3.

Aquinas, which has a 6-4 center in Mike Michuta, boasts of one of the most colorful and skilled players in the state in Dave Gagermeier, 5-9 guard.

Covington batted .330, hit 24 homers and drove in 74 runs in 90 games in 1958 but he dropped to .279 in 1959 and last year hit only .249.

The signing of Covington left only reserve infielder Felix Mantilla and rookie catcher Merritt Ranew outside the fold. Ranew is serving a six-month hitch in the Army but will be discharged in April.

Aquinas Coach Drops One Son, Promotes Another for Tourney

LA CROSSE (AP) — The old-fashioned happy Michuta family of the La Crosse Aquinas basketball team got a little old-fashioned, not so happy family discipline Tuesday. Papa John dropped veteran son Joe from the tournament bound squad, then promoted sophomore son Mike to starting center.

Coach John, who recently put down another starting senior, Dan Holy, and two reserves, said that son Joe, Aquinas regular center at 6-4, also was being dropped for disciplinary reasons.

Despite the difficulties, Aquinas swept through a regional tournament and Friday is scheduled to meet Wisconsin Rapids Assumption in a quarter final game of the Wisconsin Catholic Interscholastic Athletic Association Tour-

Recreation Center Tuesday night. Schnoor edged Carl Mittag and Walter Christensen for honors after Mittag rolled a 233 and 651 and Christensen fired a 256.

Jitter's and Joe's (45-24) leads the loop by a single game over Schmidt Builders.

"Glen Nas had the high game of the evening, a 258, in the Lake-road Goodfellowship circuit. Larson Tavern (55½-25½) leads by 4½ games.

Jean Hildorf had the only home-or count in the Tuesday Nine Women's circuit at Lakeroad. Jean rolled a 200 singleton.

McCarthy-Haertl Jewelers (47-28) leads Section 1 by 3½ games and Wamerski's tops Section 2 by a full game over Smile Inn.

Deer Hunters Threaten to Light Fires

Letters Ask Party
Permits Abolished

GREEN BAY (AP)—Some deer hunters are so burned up over the party permit deer system of recent and continuing turmoil that they've threatened to set the woods on fire.

Chief Ranger Neil Le May said the Conservation Department has received several letters in which deer hunters threatened heatedly to ignite a forest fire if the camp permit is not abolished.

Le May added an ardent-dampening note: the FBI has been asked to investigate.

And anyway, the whole thing now is in the hands of the Legislature, which must say yea or nay to the system of providing an extra deer of any age or sex to parties of four or more hunters.

LA's Loyola Makes NCAA Tourney Field

Opens Tuesday

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Loyola of Los Angeles, newly crowned champ of the West Coast Athletic Conference, had made it to the National Collegiate basketball championships for first time, leaving the NCAA with seven vacancies for its far-flung 24-team tournament opening next Tuesday.

Loyola, 19-6 this season, clinched the WCAC title Tuesday night with an 82-64 victory over Pepperdine that really wasn't needed. A few minutes before, Santa Clara had spilled San Francisco 51-39, eliminating the only team left with a chance to catch Loyola. The Lions from Loyola, representatives of a conference that sent the San Francisco Dons on to back-to-back NCAA titles with All-American Bill Russell in 1955 and 1956, will play the Skyline Conference champs in their first tournament game in the Far West regional at Portland, Ore., March 17. The Skyline berth will be decided Saturday night in a play-off at Provo, Utah, between co-champs Utah and Colorado State. That's the play-off where even the loser wins. While the winner goes to the NCAA, the loser goes to the National Invitation Tournament, which completed its 12-team lineup Tuesday with the addition of St. Louis, No. 3 team in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Ed Bente, Loyola's ace, scored 27 points in the Lions' wrap-up victory Tuesday night, the first undisputed WCAC championship for the Los Angeles school. Loyola tied with Santa Clara for the conference title last year but lost the NCAA berth in a play-off with the Broncos.

Unwind Knot
Filling of the WCAC berth left four conference berths and three at-large vacancies in the NCAA lineup. The Ohio Valley Conference will finally unwind its knot tonight at Louisville, with Morehead playing Western Kentucky for the right to enter the NCAA. Western, Morehead, and Eastern Kentucky finished in a three-way tie for the conference title. Morehead eliminated Eastern in the first round of the play-off Monday night.

Kentucky and Vanderbilt meet Thursday in a play-off for the Southeastern Conference berth. Saturday, in addition to the Utah-Colorado State game in the Skyline, New Mexico State and Arizona State U. will play at Tempe, Ariz., to determine the Border Conference representative, and the winner of the Xavier of Ohio-Chicago Loyola game at Chicago Stadium will get an at-large berth against the Ohio Valley Conference winner in the NCAA Mid-east preliminaries at Louisville March 14.

The two remaining at-large berths in the Far West regional will be picked after a telephone poll Sunday morning, with Oregon State, Portland, Oregon and Seattle reported to be the leading contenders.

TV Cameras May Become Watchdogs of State Forests

GREEN BAY (AP)—Television cameras may become the watch-dogs of Wisconsin's forests in the near future.

Neil LeMay, chief forester of the Wisconsin Conservation Department, told Tuesday of plans to install such a camera as an experiment at a tower near Stevens Point late this summer.

He discussed the plan to about 150 forest rangers and industrial forest fire fighters at the first Lakes States Forest Fire Research conference.

H. J. McGinnis, communications engineer for the Conservation Department, told how the cameras would work.

The television cameras, operating by remote control would make one complete revolution every two minutes. Their range would be from 1,00 feet to 25 or 35 miles, depending upon the terrain.

Six Twins to Pitch Game

Griffith Says
Jim Lemon
Gives in a Little

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Manager Cookie Lavagetto has named six pitchers to work in the Minnesota Twins' only intrasquad game Thursday.

Lefty Joel Kiger and Gary Dotter and right-hander George Miller will pitch three innings each for coach Clyde McCullough's team. Right-handers Pete Cimino and Joe Bonikowski and southpaw Bill Pleis will pitch for coach Sam Mele's unit.

Dotter and Cimino, both rookies are listed on the Twins' roster. The others are among 14 minor league farmhands working out with the parent club.

Slated to pitch in Saturday's opening exhibition game here against the Detroit Tigers are right-handers Paul Giel and Ray Moore and lefty Jim Kaat. President Cal Griffith conferred Tuesday by telephone with holdout Jim Lemon. He said the outfielder gave in a little on his salary demands, but no agreement was reached.

More Waterfowl, But Nesting Grounds are Dry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of waterfowl observed during the annual winter survey was 11 per cent more than last year but the nesting grounds at this time are the driest in 25 years, the Interior Department said Monday.

Late winter snows and heavy spring rains are badly needed if the breeding area in the prairie states and Canadian provinces is to provide satisfactory nesting sites, the department added.

It said an extended report on the annual winter survey conducted by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and cooperating agencies was given to the National Waterfowl Council.

Frank Sanders, Sr., jarred a 572 for the first place Ballermakers (48-39) in Hahn's Coated League. Al Knoephens hit a 568.

Five by Eight wheel at Hahn's — bowling for first place Subway Bar (53½-18½) — with a 5th threesome. Carolyn Greal shot a 200 game for Schultz Bar.

Ten Pin Toolers wheel laurels at Hahn's went to Joyce Bohnsack and her 501 for Don's. One of her games was a 198. The only honor count in the 41 Bowl's Women's National League was a 198 by Peg Rutten of Nadel's. Guest House (48-21) leads the league by nine games.

West Virginia Soph Cager Leaves School

Star Rod Thorn Plans to Return For Summer Work

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—West Virginia sophomore sensation Rod Thorn, who would rather be a doctor than play basketball, says he withdrew from school temporarily in order to maintain a strong B average in his grades.

Thorn said he plans to return to summer school at WVU in June to make up the work so he will be eligible for varsity basketball next winter.

Thorn was taking a pre-medical course and had a good B average last semester. However, he said he missed the first 2½ weeks at the start of the second semester in February because of a virus infection and got too far behind. He said if he had stayed in school this semester, his grades would have dropped.

Returned Home
"I have to make a B or better average in order to get into medical school," he explained at his home in Princeton, W.Va., where he returned after quitting school Tuesday.

Thorn, a standout student and basketball player at Princeton High School, had scholarship offers from more than 60 schools before casting his lot with West Virginia.

WVU Coach George King said that as far as he is concerned, Thorn could return to school under the athletic scholarship even if he never played another game of basketball.

Proud to Have
"Rod is the type of boy we're proud to have as a representative at this university," King said. "I hope Rod does return here whether he plays basketball or not."
"He had a tremendous year as a sophomore basketball player and his future looks even brighter."

Thorn led WVU to a 23-4 season. He was the team's top scorer and rebounder, averaging 18.5 points and 12.5 rebounds per game.

He missed the last four games of the regular season because of the virus and an ankle injury. He never reached his mid-season form after that, being held scoreless in WVU's loss to William & Mary in the Southern Conference tournament last week.

Four Masters champions, Palmer, Wall, Ford and Cary Middlecoff, are seeking the title here. The field of 150 also includes five PGA titlists, Chandler Harper, Bob Rosburg, Lionel Hebert, Dow Finsterwald and Ford.

The 72-hole tournament will be played over the Pensacola Country Club course.

Adolph Rupp, Ed Hickey Point to Strong Pressure Facing Buckeyes

CHICAGO (AP)—Two veteran State's first tourney opponent basketball coaches, Adolph Rupp of Kentucky and Ed Hickey of Marquette, agreed Tuesday Ohio State's splendid Buckeyes deserve unstinting praise, but will face mounting pressure in their NCAA title defense.

Hickey and Rupp addressed Chicago basketball writers via amplified telephone. Hickey said Louisville might be the club to pull the NCAA rug from under the Buckeyes. Louisville whipped Marquette 75-50 Monday night. If Louisville hurdles Ohio Uni. in the preliminary round Jan. 2 ratings and in the top ten of the NCAA's midwest regional at until Feb. 13.

Louisville next Tuesday the Cardinals from Kentucky will be Ohio that Ohio State is "one of the finest basketball teams ever put together."

Traffic Pressure

"Ohio State is moving now under terrific pressure trying to maintain its unbeaten string (now 23)," said Hickey. "Louisville is a Senior club with fine height and perhaps the greatest collegiate outside shooter in 6-foot-5 Johnny Turner. This team could mean lots of trouble for Ohio State. "Don't forget until a few weeks ago, Louisville was in the nation's top ten, winning 13 in a row."

The national Associated Press poll had Louisville ranked fourth in its preliminary round Jan. 2 ratings and in the top ten of the NCAA's midwest regional at until Feb. 13.

Rupp concurred with Hickey, also pitting Chicago Loyola and night, rounding out a twin bill, also pitting Chicago Loyola and the Xavier of Cincinnati.

Gene Mauch Thinks Phillies Will Leave Cellar This Season

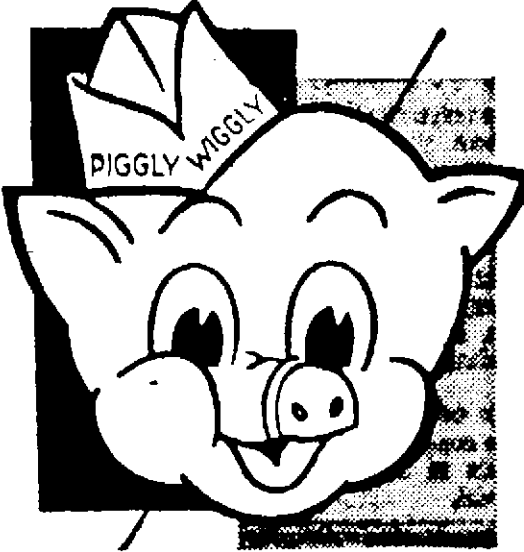

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—"We won't be in bad shape. I'm Gene Mauch, isn't content to wait convinced that even if we don't until 1962 — when the league will make a deal, our kids, with a add two new teams — for his year of experience under their Philadelphia Phillies to get out of belt, will win more games. There's talent on the club. It Mauch thinks it'll happen this simply wasn't ready. I think the kids learned a great deal last year. The same goes for the manager. I believe I'll have more knowledge of the other clubs in the league as well as my own."

At that pace, provided last year's sixth and seventh place teams stand still, the Phillies will finish sixth. In last place for the third straight year, Philadelphia sinking ship one game after the start of the '60 season.

...Going, Gone! Growing City 'Bids' Farewell to Immigrant's Farm

BY CHARLES ROUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Perhaps this is a story of a farm auction, or perhaps it specifically concerns a bustling immigrant, or perhaps it is like one of thousands of stories which record the advance of a city.

At any rate, it begins on a day in 1868 when one Hermann Raymaker came to the United States from the province of Limburg in Holland and made a minor move which has affected and will affect hundreds of people in one way or another. The move was the purchase of 40 acres of land in the Town of Preble.

A day and a half after the purchase, Raymaker had completed a small home on his property. Into this home he moved with his wife and his six Holland-born children. Soon afterwards, the building another, larger, better home. He acquired more land and three more children as the years wore on.

Work Rewarding

Hermann's industry was rewarding to him and to his family. Daily members of the family were to come into town with a wagonload of farm produce for sale at their own green market, which has now become the McDonald property.

Nearly, Preble began to press outward towards what once was farmland. It was to reach out and swallow Raymaker's old farm by natural growth.

Time took its toll and the farm, then 113 acres, passed to the sons and daughters of Hermann. Today, 93 years after the purchase of the farm, it is still in the hands of descendants.

One of Hermann's sons, John, had two daughters, Magdalene and Margaret. Magdalene married John Mackin Sr., plant manager of Green Bay Food Co., and Margaret remained single. This threesome purchased the farm from Martin, last remaining son of old Hermann, who died in 1945.

Built Up Herd

Neophyte farmers, they employed a farm manager, Herbert Wach, who guided their judgment and guarded their interests for the past 16 years. Slowly they built up a fine herd of registered Guernsey cattle.

Mackin, busy at his administrative job at the food company, explains it this way:

"The farm became too big and too small. A 113 acre farm is too small to be highly productive and too big to operate as a sideline. Soon we had to rent adjacent lands for pasture. At last—and reluctantly—we decided to give up the old farmland."

Surveyor to Stay on Ballot, Senate Votes

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Senate has rejected a proposal to eliminate the office of surveyor from county election ballots.

Opposition to the measure, offered by Sen. Lynn Stalbaum, D-Racine, was led by Republican Sens. Raymond Bice of La Crosse and Reuben La Fave of Oconto. Both said they feared reducing the job to an appointive position would spell the end of surveying service for many counties.

The vote in Bice's motion for rejection was 18-14.

In the Assembly an amendment to a resolution commending the House Un-American Activities committee was introduced.

Commends FBI

The amendment said the committee has "strayed from its original purpose" and urged Congress to direct the committee to concentrate on legislation.

Introduced by William Ward, D-New Richmond, the amendment commends the FBI for its investigation of subversive activities.

The resolution endorsing the House committee was introduced Feb. 8 and hearing Feb. 21 drew a crowd of 500 people with scores testifying for and against the proposal.

Out-of-State Students Side Budget Issue

Two Republicans Plan Measures to Boost Tuition Scale

BY FRANK CREPEAU

MADISON (AP) — While consideration of the proposed $81.6 million budget for higher education occupies center stage in the Joint Finance Committee this week, the non-resident student will be the subject of much backstage attention.

Two Republican assemblymen intend to introduce legislation to raise out-of-state tuition at the University of Wisconsin.

Sliding Scale

Nile Soik of Whitefish Bay would set tuition and fees for non-residents at $800 per year instead of the present $600.

Willis Hutnik of Tony plans to introduce a measure to put out-of-state tuition on a sliding scale

Howard Camron, D-Rice Lake, that would subject motorists to chemical tests for suspected drunkenness without their consent.

Another proposal, by Republican Sens. Earl Morton of Kenosha and Peter Carr of Janesville, would set up a state examining board for arborists. Arborists are defined in the bill as persons who make a business of diagnosing and treating trees for infestations. The bill calls for a $50 initial license and renewals of $25 annually. The board would consist of a director and five members appointed by him.

According to latest university figures, 35 per cent of the Madison campus students come from out-of-state. This includes 26 per cent of the undergraduates and 69 per cent of the graduate students.

A university official recently estimated the cost of educating a UW graduate student at $1,082 a year. Under Hutnik's sliding scale idea graduate students not on scholarships or fellowships could face an added cost of $400 per year.

All Instruction Cost

For undergraduates, at least in the first two years, the $600 pays all instruction costs, according to Leroy Lueberg, UW dean of students.

"If out-of-state tuition gets excessively high," high," Lueberg says, "the price tag rather than quality of education offered will be the determining factor in whether a student from another state will attend Wisconsin."

Higher Standards

It is argued that out-of-state students have to meet higher classroom standards to gain admission, pay higher fees and wait in turn for residence hall accommodations.

In exchange, the university benefits from a "more stimulating intellectual and social environment," Lueberg said. A study by the State Coordinating Committee for Higher Education shows that in the most recent nine-year period Wisconsin just about "broke even" in the interchange of students with other states.

In the nine state colleges 1960-61 figures show the non-residential enrollment amounts to only 7.6 per cent of the total.

Fox Cities Support Same Four Candidates as State

Honeck Is Top Choice For Justice

The Fox Cities area, a normal Republican stronghold gave former GOP attorney general Stewart Honeck an overwhelming majority of its votes in yesterday's State Supreme Court primary.

Honeck received 4,962 votes, Milwaukee Circuit Court Judge Myron Gordon 2,370 and Christ Alexopoulos 550 in the four cities, three villages and six towns. The top two will be on the April 4 ballot.

The rest of the area followed a similar pattern. Calumet, Outagamie, Waupaca and Winnebago Counties gave Honeck a total of 8,265 votes. Gordon, 4,787 and Alexopoulos 799. By county the votes were:

Calumet Honeck 593, Gordon 331 and Alexopoulos 94.

Outagamie Honeck 401, Gordon 1,982 and Alexopoulos 353.

Waupaca Honeck 1,231, Gordon 609 and Alexopoulos 132.

Winnebago Honeck 8,265, Gordon 4,787 and Alexopoulos 799.

The Oshkosh City vote was 1,334 for Honeck and 937 for Gordon. Oshkosh Town 47 and 16, Clayton 20 and 16, Vandalia 27 and 15, Winchester 16 and 8, Winneconne Town 31 and 6, Winneconne Village 56 and 33, and Wolf River 14 and 2.

Outagamie County outside the Fox Cities also favored Honeck. First Gordon, second Honeck, ranked first in the Town of Dale. Honeck in all others. Alexopoulos ran third in every Outagamie County precinct.

General Support

Honeck's support was general in nearly all precincts. The only ones giving pluralities to Gordon were Ward 9, Precinct 1, Appleton, and Wards 4 and 5 of Kaukauna. Alexopoulos ran third in all precincts except Appleton 91 where Honeck had the low vote.

Votes for the two major candidates, by municipalities with Honeck's vote listed first, are:

Appleton, 2,337 and 1,044; Neenah City, 806 and 318; Menasha City, 525 and 252; Kaukauna City, 292 and 229; Kimberly, 206 and 111; Little Chute, 255 and 132; Combined Locks, 36 and 17; Neenah Town, 95 and 33; Menasha Town, 127 and 53; Grand Chute, 118 and 60; Harrison, 55 and 27; Buchanan, 33 and 22; and Vandenberg, 27 and 12.

Winnebago Vote

Honeck was top vote getter in all Winnebago County precincts except four Oshkosh wards in which he was outpolled by Gordon and one Oshkosh ward in which Honeck and Gordon tied.

$5 Rate Set for New Lights on Wisconsin Ave.

The assessment for ornamental street lighting on Wisconsin Avenue from Richmond to Drew Streets will probably be $5 a front foot.

Both the board of public works and the public safety committee decided on the rate Tuesday after hearing a report from Electrical Inspector Fred Volkman.

Each group will present a resolution to the council next week asking the $5 rate and serving notice to property owners of the city's intent to assess for the lights.

The rate on Wisconsin Avenue will be the same charged for downtown ornamental lighting.

Ford Reveals Bonus Awards for Employees

DETROIT (AP) — A total of 1,373 Ford Motor Co. executives and employees will receive $33,602.77 under the auto company's supplemental compensation plan for 1960.

Ford made the report yesterday in the annual statement to stockholders. It said the company also granted options Feb. 8 to 154 individuals including seven officers to buy 189,500 shares of stock.

The bonus compares with $34,116,200 awarded for 1959 to 4,046 executives and employees.

Ford's supplemental compensation plan provides for bonuses or awards to salaried employees for contributions to the company's success. A salary and supplemental compensation committee makes the awards.

2 Menasha Firms To Help Library

Banta Company, Wooden Ware to Pay for Basement Remodeling

MENASHA — Two large long established Menasha corporations will finance complete remodeling of the basement of Elisha D. Smith Public Library the library board announced today.

The project, being planned by McMahon Engineering Co., is the second major alteration of the library building. The first was addition of the children's room in 1930-31.

Financing the basement conversion will be George Banta Co. Foundation operated by the local publishing firm and Menasha Wooden Ware Corp., founded by Elisha D. Smith, who donated the library building and land in 1897.

No Cost Estimate

Mrs. J. H. Witterding said the children's room is named after Miss Lucy Lee Pleasant's first Menasha librarian and aunt of George Banta Jr., board chair man of George Banta Co.

No cost estimate is available on the basement project. Included will be a meeting room for the Golden Age Club, a kitchenette, rest rooms, enlargement of the supply and magazine room or an adult reading room.

The board hopes at the same time to have other renovation and cleanup work done to the above ground portions of the library building. The basement stairway entrance will be altered and an inside stairway from the basement to the first floor installed.

Work should be completed by fall, the board says.

Popular Place

Menasha's library has been popular as a meeting place. The Economics Club has met there without interruption since November 1939. Many other clubs and political groups use the facilities.

On the day of the library's dedication Oct. 21, 1898 the Fox Valley Library Association was founded in the building by representatives of other area libraries who attended the ceremonies.

Controlling the Level of Lake Winnebago to Lessen Flooding in Low Areas was Topic of a Hearing in Oshkosh this Morning.

Engineering Study Could Provide Answers to Lake Level Problems

OSHKOSH — A $200,000 engineering study that extended over several years might provide answers to some of the high water problems affecting cities along Lake Winnebago and the Fox and Wolf River tributaries according to Col. J. A. Smedlie, Chicago army district engineer.

Smedlie reported this to about 50 government officials, lake shore residents, boaters and water power interest representatives at a hearing at the Winnebago County Courthouse this morning.

"We are not promoting such a project, but from our engineering experience, that would be the best way of finding out what needs to be done," the colonel indicated.

Mayors of various cities present indicated they would ask their councils for resolutions asking Congress to provide such a study.

Congress Refused Once

In 1946, a similar request was directed to Congress after hearings backed by various interests affected by lake and river water levels, but Congress failed to provide the money.

Col. Smedlie said such a commission, on the Wolf River, to hold necessary corrective steps, costs back water from early spring rains and thaw. He said this may have caused the 1960 floods.

George B. Wesler of the Chicago engineers office stated the 9.5-inch rainfall from April 17 to May 20 last year could not be predicted and was a major factor in the flooding then.

Town of Menasha Electors Happy With Voting Machines

MENASHA — Most town of Menasha voters using voting machines for the first time Tuesday liked them.

Chairman Amos Page said the machines were accepted quite willingly by the 206 who voted and no one expressed dissatisfaction with the machines.

Some older people seemed a little apprehensive at first but came away smiling after casting their vote, he said.

The machines will be used again at the April 4 election and then a referendum on purchase of the machines will be held at the April 1962 election.

Town Clerk Earl Hoeselman remarked "Everyone who used the machines seem well pleased and said they preferred them to ballots. Everything went very well."

Elvin Hardke, route 2 Menasha, commented machine voting is very satisfactory. "That machine is wonderful. It only takes a fraction of a minute. Other people who voted seemed in favor of the machines."

Mrs. Gordon Slattery, route 2 Menasha, said voters found the machines easy to operate. She called them "wonderful" and said many elder citizens were "real pleased."

Appleton Club Awards Plaques for Essays Written About Security

Judy Hantschel, Kimberly, a senior at St. John High School, and Susie Salm, Neenah, a junior at St. Mary's, and in the B division Menasha were awarded plaques Tuesday night for winning the A and B divisions of the Appleton Jaycees "My True Security" essay contest.

Runner up in the A division was Mary Jo Graves, Menasha senior at St. Mary's, and in the B division Lee Mack, Neenah, a junior at Xavier High School.

Ten essays were entered in the contest. Dennis Herring, contest chairman, said including entries 27 Buchanan, 38 to 18, and Van from Shiocton High School and denbrook 41 to 5.

Lists Sources

Miss Hantschel listed her security as knowing who I am going to know where I am going to know where I want to go. The students named her sources of security as her home, American citizenship and her own self reliance, initiative and talents.

Miss Salm spoke of the interdependence inward and outward forms of security, naming the American way of life the true security. "An American living in this wonderful democracy is not secure if he does not have peace of soul and it stands to reason that one cannot have an easy mind if he is in constant fear for his life, his liberty, and his happiness."

Choose Plan For Roof on Grandstand

Appleton Board Decides Not to Move Press Box

Appleton's board of public works reviewed five alternate plans for a roof on the Goodland Field grandstand Tuesday and chose one which will keep the press box where it is now.

Moving the press box would be expensive, board members learned because it would change the structural pattern of the roof and necessitate numerous changes in electrical conduits to serve broadcasters and official timekeepers.

If the press box were placed on top of the roof, as was once suggested, a catwalk would have to be built for safe access.

The plan chosen by the board has a rough estimated cost of $12,900. The range of the five plans was $12,350 to $17,110 depending on the press box location, the number of steel pillars used and the type of roof decking used.

The alternate plans were prepared by Davis and Watson Architects, Appleton, and consulted engineers hired by the council to design the roof.

The estimated costs do not include $1,500 in engineering fees. In November the council approved $13,000 for the roof.

Board members asked the engineers to investigate the possibility of using some material besides steel decking hoping that the cost could be reduced and the $13,000 appropriation would be sufficient.

A final plan and cost estimate will be presented to the board next week.

Two Towns Tie For First Election Reports Tuesday

The Calumet County Town of Rantoul and the Waupaca County Town of Waupaca tied Tuesday for the honor of reporting their primary vote results first of the 126 precincts covered direct by the Post-Crescent staff.

Each made its sparse report at 5:50 p.m. Rantoul had only 35 votes and Waupaca Town had 23 ballots.

The Town of Horton was the first Outagamie County precinct, reporting its 35 votes at 6:05 p.m., beating out the proverbial early bird Bear Creek Village by several minutes.

Fenelon Outpolls Rothwell

The Fox Cities area agreed with the rest of Wisconsin that Angus B. Rothwell, Manitowish and William J. Fenelon, Port Washington should be the two men on next month's ballot for state school superintendent. Unlike the state as a whole the area gave Fenelon more votes than Rothwell in the primary.

The four cities, three villages and six towns gave Fenelon 3,730, Rothwell 3,438. Ralph Gibson, Madison, 467; Frederick F. Erick, West Allis, 404; and Arlyn Wollenburg, Lake Mills, 212.

The total vote of Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet and Waupaca Counties put the five men in the same order as the statewide vote. Four county totals are Rothwell 6,809; Fenelon 6,831; Gibson, 996; Erick 638; and Wollenburg, 185.

Outagamie County gave Fenelon 3,370; Rothwell 2,651; Gibson, 326; Erick 254; and Wollenburg, 185.

Other Totals

Winnebago County totals are Rothwell 2,508; Fenelon 2,297; Gibson 393; Wollenburg 249; and Erick 213.

In Calumet County Rothwell got 468; Fenelon 448; Gibson 90; Wollenburg 50; and Erick 44.

Waupaca County gave Rothwell 1,387; Fenelon 526; Gibson, 157; Erick 127; and Wollenburg 83.

In the Fox Cities Fenelon's greatest support was in the villages. He outpolled Rothwell by 466 to 45 in Little Chute, 266 to 82 in Kimberly and 40 to 18 in Combined Locks.

Fenelon was the top vote getter in Menasha, where he received 376 and Rothwell 333. Rothwell was high in Wards 2 and 3 of Menasha and Fenelon the other four precincts.

Fenelon also ran first in Grand Chute where he received 80 votes to Rothwell's 68. Harrison 47 to Rothwell's 38 to 18, and Vandenberg 41 to 5.

Gibson Support

Rothwell received 1,806 and Fenelon 1,635 in Appleton. Ward 9, Precinct 2 was the only voting place in the Fox Cities at which Gibson was among the top two vote getters. In that precinct, Gibson polled 41; Fenelon 35, and

Study May Solve Lake Level Woes

Fond du Lac Problem
James Megellas, Fond du Lac council president, said his city's problem usually was different since Fond du Lac is at the shallow end of the lake. We prefer the lake at a much higher level in the summer, he declared.

Edward Ehke, Winneconne utility superintendent, reported on the flooding of village sanitary sewers and of shoreline washouts in Lakes Winneconne and Koshong as a result of last year's high water levels.

Wesler said the frequency of last year's floodings has been once in every 33 years while once in every four years the water level has gone over the 21 inch mark. We try to pull the level down in the spring and let it build up gradually, trying to get it to the crest early in April, he said.

Asked which interest — power navigation or municipalities — will get priority on the lake level in case of a showdown, Col. Smedley said it is navigation. That is what the waterway was set up for under the law. Our primary interest is navigation.

Military Space Development Put Up to Air Force
Washington — Secretary of State Robert S. McNamara issued an order today giving the air force control of military space development.

McNamara told the various branches of the Defense Department that he and Deputy Secretary Roswell Gilpatric have decided to assign space development programs and projects to the Department of the Air Force, except under unusual circumstances.

However, under the exceptions the navy's Transit Navigation Satellite program and the army's Advent Communications Satellite development program still will remain under control of those services, defense spokesmen said.

Price-Fixer Freed; Will Go Back to Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Westinghouse Electric Corp. sales manager, one of two executives freed from prison after serving 26 days on charges of price fixing, said today he plans to go back to work but that he didn't know exactly when.

This was the only comment from Charles I. Mauntel, 60, when he was released at his home in suburban Drexel Hill following his release Tuesday from the Montgomery County prison in Norris town, Pa.

Mauntel is sales manager of the firm's steam and turbine division here. Westinghouse announced shortly after its executives were sentenced that the firm would take no disciplinary action against them.

John H. Chiles, 37, of Sharon, Pa., vice president in charge of the firm's transformer plant here, the other executive released Tuesday, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Mauntel and Chiles were among seven electrical equipment manufacturing firm executives jailed in the giant antitrust case last month.

Turnout Low At Area Polls
Appleton Registers 16.7 Per Cent Of Eligible Voters

Washington — Secretary of State Robert S. McNamara issued an order today giving the air force control of military space development.

McNamara told the various branches of the Defense Department that he and Deputy Secretary Roswell Gilpatric have decided to assign space development programs and projects to the Department of the Air Force, except under unusual circumstances.

However, under the exceptions the navy's Transit Navigation Satellite program and the army's Advent Communications Satellite development program still will remain under control of those services, defense spokesmen said.

The Town of Harrison in Waupaca County registered two votes over the seven man board while the Town of Iola, Waupaca County, had five more with 12 votes.

The small turnout can be described in dollars and cents per ballot because of the fixed cost of the election.

The Town of Harrison ballots may have been the most expensive in the state at $6.22 for each of nine while Iola Town's 12 votes cost about $4.65 apiece.

A sampling of low Outagamie voting precincts showed the Town of Kaukauna paying $3.18 per ballot, Town of Liberty $3.73, Shirocton $2.07 and Seymour a flat $1 per ballot.

Democrats to Meet
Assistant Atty. Gen. Nat. Belliman will speak at the monthly meeting of the Outagamie County Democrats at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Kimberly Clubhouse.

Rothwell 12 Fenelon ranked first in Wards 4, 6, 8, 9-1, 11 and 13 and Rothwell in the other 14 wards.

Neenah gave Rothwell 672 and Fenelon 377. Fenelon was high only in Ward 6, where he had one vote more than Rothwell.

Town of Neenah gave Rothwell 66 and Fenelon 51, and Town of Menasha gave Rothwell 91 and Fenelon 68.

In the City of Kaukauna where the total vote included 247 for Rothwell and 220 for Fenelon, the Manitowish Bay superintendent was high in Wards 2 and 4, the Manitowish Bay instruction director in Wards 1 and 5 and the two tied in Ward 3.

Rothwell was high man in 34 Fox Cities precincts, Fenelon in 20 and Gibson in one. In two precincts Rothwell and Fenelon polled equal numbers. In no precinct did Frick or Wollenburg rank first or second among the five candidates.

In Winnebago County Rothwell outpolled Fenelon by 22 to 15 in the Town of Vinland, 11 to 10 in Winchester, 25 to 13 in Winneconne, 55 to 27 in Winneconne Village and 10 to 3 in Wolf River. Fenelon got 1,050 to Rothwell's 1,006 in the City of Oshkosh, 33 to 21 in the Town of Oshkosh and 18 to 15 in the Town of Clayton.

Outagamie Has One Physician for Every 1,408 Residents, Figures Show

Outagamie County has one doctor in private practice for every 1,408 residents, according to figures from the United States Public Health Service. Statistics are presented in the recently issued Health Manpower Source Book with figures from 1959. In Outagamie County, it shows there were 78 doctors registered, exclusive of any in the Federal service. Of these, 72 were in private practice as general practitioners or specialists. There were 6 who were engaged only in hospital work, research or teaching.

National Comparison

To make possible a comparison with the situation in counties of similar type elsewhere, the PHS has divided the nation into groups of counties, alike in nearness to professional reasons. It is found, therefore, that in the "greater metropolitan" counties the ratio runs as high as 158 doctors per 100,000, nearly four times what it is in the "isolated rural" counties. A committee appointed by the surgeon general feels that the minimum requirement to protect the health of the people is 132 doctors per 100,000. It states that we will have to put of medical graduates merely to keep pace with the nation's population growth.

Gains Reported in Fight Against Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Cancer Society says the cure rate of cancer is increasing about one per cent a year. The society, in its 1960 report released yesterday, also said there is a pronounced trend toward early diagnosis of the disease. The society outlined a program for 1961 that takes cognizance of the need the society sees for increasing public education on cancer and its prevention. An early study of data being compiled in the society's five-year study of American health habits possibly related to cancer shows that 42.4 per cent of men queried have annual medical checkups. The report said. It also cited a study done by the tumor registry of New York Medical College and Flower and Fifth Ave. hospitals showing a definite increase over the years in the percentage of cancers found when they were still confined in a small region of the body.

About 185 Members of Outagamie County School Boards met for a one-day convention at the courthouse annex Tuesday. Theodore A. Sorenson, Madison, state supervisor of pupil transportation, seated left, and Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent, seated center, were speakers. With them are Mrs. Johanna Siegel, treasurer of Combined Locks district, Robert E. Brown, director of Badger School district near Appleton, standing left, and Robert Hauk, clerk of Hortonville elementary school.

Outagamie County Won't Initiate School Integration

Van Straten Cites Slow Pace for Changing Union High Districts

Outagamie County School Committee will not initiate action to integrate union high school and elementary school districts into one system, county superintendent Henry J. Van Straten indicated today at a one-day conference Tuesday.

Shoeton, Seymour, Freedom and Hortonville may not become integrated districts within the next 18 months, the superintendent said. He listed advantages of integrated districts but said such reorganization takes time, education explanation and public support.

Van Straten told of the formation of common school districts in the county in the last century. Then it was important to have schools within walking distance of children's homes. Eighth grade education was considered adequate for nearly everyone. The 128 one-room school districts in Outagamie County have shrunk to 48 as transportation facilities have improved, he said.

Reduce Number

Integration of rural school districts may reduce the number of elementary schools. Boards of reorganized districts, not the county committee, decide whether schools are to be closed. Van Straten said a newly integrated district probably would have to run one-room schools for a time, he said, pointing out that increased services of an integrated system could be offered without closing schools.

Advantages of having elementary and high schools controlled

No Opposition

Sorenson said he was disturbed that no one had voiced opposition to a bill to require all classrooms to display the Wisconsin flag. The proposal seems silly, he said.

In answer to questions by teachers and board members, Van Straten said:

School boards should pay their teachers on time. (A teacher complained that Christmas was the only time her check was not late.)

Children are placed in the county's four classes for retarded children after report by teachers, screening by supervisors, certification by state psychologists and conference with parents.

The county school committee has power to change district boundaries, but people can appeal its decision or petition for referendum. After the 1962 deadline, no one may call a referendum to get out of a high school district, however.

Local boards can set school calendars different from the one recommended by the county, long as there are 180 school days.

Aid Denied

School boards are to notify teachers by April 1 if their contracts will be renewed and teachers are to notify boards by April 15 whether they will sign contracts for the next year. Boards need not give a reason for not renewing a teacher's contract.

A person renting a house but not owning property or working in a school district has a vote which counts just as much as the person owning and operating the farm on which he lives.

State aid is denied to districts who do not pay at least $2,400 an annual salary to teachers with two years of college, $3,000 to those with three years and $4,000 to those with bachelors' degrees.

Plan More Study On Winnebago Activity Center

NEENAH — A more detailed study before a final decision is reached on the proposed Winnebago County Activity Center building has been recommended by the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce.

In a letter to Van E. Jackson, chairman of the county board's agriculture and education committee, Vera Duerrwaechter, chamber president, asked that a more "concerted study be made to determine costs, maintenance and specific location" before a final decision.

Duerrwaechter reported that chamber members have been polled, but the board of directors were unable to reach a decision for or against the proposed center.

He added that "at this time we desire not to make a commitment either way."

Review of Pay Plans Voted Down

Appleton Police, Firemen Salaries Remain Unchanged

A resolution to review the police and firemen's pay plans was denied last night by Appleton's public safety committee.

A 3 to 1 vote turned down the resolution that had been submitted by Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings.

The vote followed a short, but heated debate between two members of the committee and their chairman, Ald. Robert Stumpf.

Stumpf said he conferred with Mrs. Stillings and she agreed to a two-week delay in discussing the resolution. The chairman said he wanted the delay because the committee had a lot of other business to dispose of last night, and because the pay plans are a controversial subject.

"We're in for a long session for a change for changing the parking meters to conform to the new rates, and we also have high school students present tonight," he said. Student aldermen were present as part of the YMCA Youth In Government Week.

Chairman Criticized

One of the committee members said the chairman shouldn't make arguments with other aldermen before the committee is asked its opinion.

This committee, the finance committee and the council have denied previous requests to change the new pay plans and there is no need to go into it further," one committeeman asserted.

At budget time last year the council voted a $20 a month raise for all salaried personnel and 10 cents an hour for all workers paid on an hourly basis. The raise was effective Jan. 1.

But in the police and fire departments this money was reallocated, so some of the men didn't get the full $20 or 10 cents an hour increase and some got no raise at all.

Committees from the two departments met with the finance committee and agreed to the different pay plans to eliminate certain inequities, the finance group reported to the council.

Action Scored

Under the new plans there are no merit increases or annual raises once a man has been on the force three years. Rookies get a raise for three years on the anniversary date of being hired and the only way to get a raise after that is by promotion, or if the council votes a hike in base pay.

The first argument over the new pay plans for police and firemen broke out at the Dec. 7, 1960, council meeting, when the finance committee was severely criticized for adopting the plans without approval of the public safety committee. The public safety group has jurisdiction over the police and fire departments.

Since then Mrs. Stillings has been pressing for a review of the new pay plans and asking a review so they conform to the $20 a month or 10 cents an hour voted by the council.

Ribicoff Urges Quick Action On School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff today urged congress to move fast on President Kennedy's program for public school aid.

"We cannot afford in my judgment to permit any of our children to go even one year longer than necessary without adequate instructional staff and classroom facilities," Ribicoff said at the opening session of hearings by the senate subcommittee on education.

The administration proposes to provide about $2.4 billion for public elementary and secondary schools over a three year period. States could use the money for construction of classrooms, teacher salaries or both, and for special projects aimed at solving area educational problems.

The bill also would provide for continued aid in operation and construction in school districts affected by federal activities, but at a reduced level.

Converting Meters Will Cost $2,000

Appleton Committee Authorizes Buying Necessary Parts

It will cost Appleton more than $2,000 to convert timing mechanisms in parking meters so the new, higher rates can be enforced.

It is expected this cost will be recouped in several months with the doubled rates adopted by the council.

Pennies will no longer work meters. After the timers are changed only nickles will give parking time.

Lester Van Roy, superintendent of the parking meter department, told the public safety committee last night that parts to convert the timers will cost about $979.

Buying the parts was authorized. Labor costs for two factory men to help convert the meters will run about $1,170, the superintendent said.

Van Roy was asked by the committee if he and his helper could do the work, even if they had to work after regular hours and get over time pay.

Tedious Work

"We couldn't possibly do it all ourselves," he said, "we wouldn't get done until next Christmas. That's time consuming work, and we have our regular daily duties to do, also."

men by bringing the meters' in off the streets and take them back out after the timers are changed. We'll be doing good to get the job done in 15 working days," the superintendent noted. Van Roy was told to see if he should get some part time help.

The $1,170 would pay two factory men $39 a day each for 15 days, just to do the shop work of changing mechanisms and fixing coin slots so the meter won't work with pennies.

Van Roy's cost estimates take into consideration a plan he has worked out to try to make the change as economical as possible.

The city has an annual meter replacement program whereby 250 new meters are purchased to replace worn out meters. Van Roy wants to buy 205 new ones this year, most of which will be made to fit the new rate schedule, thus eliminating some of the cost of converting. Committeemen will ask council permission to advertise for bids for new meters.

Meters on the lots on the southeast corner of Washington and Division Streets and the northwest corner of Washington and Morrison Streets will not be converted immediately, the committee decided.

To enforce the new rates on these lots would mean more new meters are needed and committeemen felt work on these lots should be postponed until a decision is made on where to build a parking ramp. These lots have been suggested for ramping.

Committeemen don't want to overrun the meter replacement budget set by the council at $12,000.

Seminary Unit To Give Concert

Wartburg Chorus to Sing Sacred Music In Program Saturday

The 35-member male chorus from Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa, will give a concert of sacred music at 8 p.m. Saturday at Zion Lutheran Church. The concert will be open to the public. An offering will be taken. The chorus will be on a 2-week tour, giving 18 concerts in eight states in the Midwest and South-west.

Chorus director is Lou Novak, a senior student at the seminary. Novak graduated from Wartburg College in 1955 with a bachelor of music degree and received his master of sacred music degree from Union Theological Seminary.

The program includes music from different periods, stressing the Renaissance, Baroque, and contemporary. The numbers include music by the entire choir as well as double choir and solo performances.

The chorus will sing such numbers as the 17th century German selection, "Ye watchers and ye holy ones," "Cantate Domino" by Hans Leo von Harsler, "Carol of the Drum" by Katherine K. Davies, "Jeg er saa glad," a folk song in Danish, and "For the music composed only three months ago and not yet published, has been sung by no other choir."

The featured number will be "Motet on Psalm 51" by Jan Ben-

Turnout Light In Fox Cities Primary Vote

Fox Cities residents lived up to predictions and showed a poor turnout at the polls in yesterday's nonpartisan primary for supreme court judge and state school superintendent.

Only 8,311 votes were cast in 53 precincts, or an average of 137 at each. It ordinarily costs governments $100 or more to keep a polling place open for a day, regardless of how many people vote.

Appleton's turnout was 3,852, or 16.7 per cent of registered voters. Neenah, 1,218, or 14.2 per cent, and Menasha, 875, or 13.3 per cent.
